GOVERNMENT BARRED FROM TRADING SHIPS FOR STOCK IN FIRMS

Daugherty Advises Coolidge That the "Lasker-Farley Plan" Is Illegal.

ONLY SALES FOR CASH VALID

Other Schemes Lack Authority of Congress and Might Embarrass Nation, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—No power is possessed by the Government under the Merchant Marine act whereby the Shipping Board can carry out its proposed plan to dispose of Government-owned ships through subsidiary corporations, Attorney General Daugherty informed President Coolidge in an opinion today.

The scheme, which was termed the Lasker-Farley plan, contemplated the incorporation of these subsidiaries under State laws, allowing them to own and operate the vessels. Mr. Daugherty said in his opinion that it was evidently the intention of Congress to authorize a sale of the ships either for cash or for credits up to fifteen years, and that an arrangement whereby the Government received shares of stock for the ships was not a sale within the provisions of the act.

In addition, if the transfer of vessels to State corporations in return for the issuance of capital stock was to be regarded as a passing of title authorized by the sale provisions of the act, the Attorney General added, "it is obvious that Section 14 of the act must be ignored, for its provisions, as we have seen, contemplate the payment of money and not shares of stock into the Treasury of the United States as miscellaneous receipts."

He also said that if any weight was to be given to the legal principle that a corporation was a distinct person, holding its property and exercising its corporate functions through its appointed agents, "it must be admitted that under the present proposal the Government will in a real and substantial sense part with title to its vessels."

Questions of serious consideration might arise through the assumption by the Government of stock ownership in a private corporation controlled by State law, the Attorney General pointed out, saying it might be contended that under statutes imposing assessments to meet the debts of the corporation the Government would be liable as any other stockholder.

The vessels transferred to the corporation, he added, might even become legally subject to State taxation, and such immunity from suit as the Government now enjoys with respect to the operation of its fleet would very likely disappear. Undoubtedly, Mr. Daugherty further explained, the directors and officials of the proposed corporations would not be officers of the United States, and thus the Government in the administration and operation of its shipping industry would lose the benefits of the sanctions provided by law to secure the good conduct and public accountability of its agents.

Mr. Daugherty said there had been instances of the formation of semi-Government corporations, but that in each case there had been unmistakable legislative authority. The United States Grain Corporation, he conceded, was organized by Executive order, but the applicable statute empowered the President in the broadest terms to "create" and use any agency or agencies "in carrying out its objects."

"There is no language of like import in the statute now under consideration," Mr. Daugherty declared, and concluded that "the authority to transfer the ships to private corporations cannot fairly be vested in the provisions in the act relating to sales."

Mr. Daugherty called attention to the fact that when the bill for a merchant marine act was introduced in the House it contained a provision which stated that the power and authority vested in the board might be exercised directly by the Shipping Board, or by it through the United States Emergency Fleet Corporation, or other agencies created pursuant to authority of law."

The quoted words were stricken out in the Senate, and the House agreed to them. This circumstance, Mr. Daugherty said, was significant, and it "negatives the idea that Congress intended that the power and authority vested in the board should be exercised by any one outside the board itself or the Emergency Fleet Corporation."

DOUBT SHIPPING BOYCOTT.

London Papers Discredit Reported Move Against Our Vessels.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—A report from America that British shippers have declared a boycott on the United States Shipping Board is received with marked incredulity in London shipping circles, according to The Daily Telegraph. The paper adds:

"Although from time to time a few hotheaded persons among the shippers may have mooted the desirability of a boycott, no impression can be gathered in responsible quarters that such a course is even a possibility. * * *

"There is every reason to believe that British shippers will in the future as heretofore treat all American shipping interests with the same business respect and intelligence as is accorded British shipping by Americans."

Bill Roper Only Independent To Win in Philadelphia Vote

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—The only Independent whose head today still appears above the swirling flood of the Republican organization victory in Tuesday's primary for local offices is that of William W. Roper, head coach of the Princeton University football team.

Roper was a candidate for renomination on the Independent ticket for City Councilman, a $5,000 four-year place, and unofficial figures show he is leading his nearest rival by the slender margin of 165 votes in a total vote for all candidates of about 115,000.

The organization declares Roper was defeated, and in consequence he intends to watch the official count as closely as he does a Princeton practice before a championship game.

WORLD COURT TO FIX POWER OF LEAGUE

Council Votes to Submit Issue of Its Rights in Cases Like Greco-Italian Dispute.

ITALIAN BOLT IS AVERTED

Salandra Threatened It if Cecil Persisted in Public Censure of Mussolini's Course.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Sept. 20.—In a somewhat stormy secret session, with Signor Salandra threatening to leave the room and proclaim Italy's withdrawal from the League, the Council this morning decided to hand over to the International Court of Justice at The Hague for decision within the next two months these three questions which have been raised in the recent Italo-Greek dispute:

First—The degree to which a State is responsible for crimes committed in its territory.

Second—How far the League is competent to take an attitude in an international dispute which is already engaging the attention of a separate body such as the Conference of Ambassadors?

Third—How far a State which is a member of the League has the right to take coercive measures against another member, or whether this is not the duty of the League alone and as a whole.

During the next few days the framing of these questons will be effected by the Council, in consultation with its own legal experts, in such a way as to avoid, if possible, direct citation of the Italian action in Corfu.

This partial victory for Signor Salandra was won today after a heated two-hour argument with Lord Robert Cecil. Lord Robert had prepared a long reply to Salandra's speech of Tuesday, which he proposed to make at the public session of the Council called for 10:30 o'clock this morning. At the instance of the French and Spanish members of the Council it was, however, decided to hold a private meeting first, as Signor Salandra had obtained instructions from Rome to leave the Council if the speech was made. This threat was backed by warnings to Lord Robert from several sources that should he persist in public ventilation of the dispute with Italy and obtain anything like a public censure of the Italian dictator the latter's position

CALL WARD LAWYER AS STATE WITNESS TO IDENTIFY PISTOLS

Weapons Turned Over by Accused "Look Like Those I Gave Him," Says Police Chief.

DEFENSE AGAIN SCORES

Connect Victim of Killing With Red Auto and Bare Record of 5 Convictions in 2 Years.

The weapons that figured in the death of Clarence M. Peters were introduced in evidence against Walter S. Ward at White Plains, yesterday. One was an automatic pistol of .38 calibre, which Ward in his statement of the killing said he owned. The second was a blue-steel revolver of .32 calibre which Ward, in the same statement, said was in the hand of Peters when he shot the youth in self-defense.

Shortly after the weapons had been tagged as exhibits by the prosecution, Frank Cody, Chief of Police of New Rochelle, was called to the witness stand. Under examination by Special Deputy Attorney General Thomas J. O'Neill, the police official said that both weapons "looked like" those he had given to Ward, then Chairman of the New Rochelle Police Board, some time before the tragedy in the Kensico Reservoir road. Counsel for Ward developed the point that any one of a thousand such firearms would look like all the others.

Against this point by the State the defense scored when a non-commissioned officer of the Marine Corps, relating events that took place while Peters was undergoing rejection in that branch of the service, told how Peters had expressed a desire to ride in what the witness "thought" was a Stutz automobile. Ward's story, told when he surrendered, was that Peters, "Charley Ross" and "Jack Rogers," the alleged blackmailers, drove to the scene of the shooting in a red Stutz.

Defense Wins Another Point.

The defense registered again when it succeeded in getting into the record official cards showing that Peters had been convicted five times in two years for minor crimes. Following up the advantage gained the day before, when former State Troopers Greene and Collins were pictured as violating Justice Wagner's prohibition against witnesses talking to each other, Allan P. Campbell, of Ward's legal forces, obtained the consent of the court to recall both witnesses at a later date.

Several hours after his victory, Mr. Campbell received a surprise when Mr. O'Neill, using all of the dramatic effect obtainable from his action, suddenly put the Ward lawyer on the stand. Mr. Campbell was plainly taken back and he looked just as unhappy as have some of the State's witnesses while undergoing his exceptionally keen cross-examinations. The attorney merely testified to turning over the pistols to Sheriff George J. Werner several days before Ward was surrendered.

The crowd of spectators at the trial was greater yesterday than on any previous day. They were grouped about the door an hour before court opened at 10 o'clock. Twenty-five per cent. of the crowd in the courtroom were women. Five young girls occupied front seats. Mrs. Beryl Curtis Ward, in a blue cotton crepe dress, sat beside her

Independent Tries to Get Ford to Declare Whether He Will Be a Candidate in 1924

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 20.—An interview with Henry Ford to determine if he will accept the nomination for the Presidency on the Independent Progressive ticket in 1924 is being sought by Roy M. Harrop of Omaha, National Chairman of the party and President of the American Economic League, organized here some time ago to run Mr. Ford for President and to bring about what it refers to as "economic stabilization of the United States."

In a letter mailed to Mr. Ford, asking for an interview at Dearborn within the next two weeks regarding his "candidacy and stand on public questions from the viewpoint of all interests," Chairman Harrop declared that letters and telegrams from practically every State in the Union were being received requesting permission to circulate petitions to place his name on the ballot of an Independent Progressive ticket, but at the same time were asking if he would accept the nomination if it were offered him.

Referring to an interview with the representative of a nationally known magazine in which Mr. Ford was quoted as saying that if a crisis existed in this country he would consider being a candidate, Mr. Harrop said:

"A crisis does exist in the United States today, and there is a demand for a man who can do things quickly to save this nation from bankruptcy and dissolution. There is no necessity or legitimate excuse for the drastic, destructive, cruel and criminal deflation policy of the privately owned Federal Reserve Bank system, which has so afflicted and cursed the people of the United States since 1920. * * * The crying need of the hour and the demand of the people is that this Federal Reserve Bank system be taken out of the hands of this private money monopoly and be permitted to function as an exclusively owned Government banking system."

MONTREAL, Sept. 20.—"I am not running for or against anything," said Henry Ford when asked if he intended to run for President of the United States, according to an interview in The Montreal Herald today. Mr. Ford passed through this city on his way from his home in Detroit to Seal Harbor, Me., where his family is at present.

He said he was neither a Democrat nor a Republican. "They will have to show me a difference," he declared, "before I affiliate with either party. They are both tarred with the same brush."

Washington Demands Open Door in Tangier in Identic Notes to 3 Conferring Powers

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—This Government has sent identic notes to Great Britain, France and Spain urging that the principle of the open door, or equal commercial opportunity, be observed in the settlement of the Tangier question.

While the difficulties confronting France, Great Britain and Spain with respect to Tangier are ostensibly economic, having to do with the question of port duties and trade privileges, the conference has had an undercurrent of international politics which has made it of much greater importance than has generally been admitted. The city of Tangier, located almost opposite Gibraltar, has been recognized by military authorities to be of vast strategic importance, and especially since the development of the submarine during the World War it has been recognized that a submarine base at that point would menace Gibraltar as the key to the Mediterranean.

Notwithstanding the ostensibly international status of Tangier, there has been much dissatisfaction on the part of Great Britain because of the great influence exercised over the district by the French. This influence, it is stated, arises from the fact that the Sultan of Morocco is the nominal head of the Government of Tangier and the French, because of their dominant position in Morocco have been able to exercise great influence over the Sultan. It has been charged that France is endeavoring to nullify the internationalization arrangement and set herself up as in absolute control of Tangier, and the further charge has been made that she wishes to do this in order to be left free to establish the submarine base which would control the Straits of Gibraltar and hence the Mediterranean.

The United States Government, despite its action in sending a note to the interested powers, is carefully refraining from meddling in the political aspects of the situation.

EVADES POLICE QUIZ, BUT LOSES $20,000

THOR ON WITNESS STAND

Confronted With $2,000 Check From Alleged Bootlegger, Which He Had Said Was $1,000.

George J. Shevlin, long sought as the man believed to hold the key to the mystery surrounding the so-called Petrucci case, which has held the centre of the stage in the Crain police inquiry, forfeited $20,000 bail yesterday by his failure to appear in the United States District Court, where he is under indictment for bootlegging.

By keeping away from court, Shevlin evaded agents of Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora and John D. Lindsay, counsel for Magistrate Corrigan, who for some time have been watching for Shevlin at places where it was believed he was likely to appear. These agents were armed with subpoenas which would have compelled Shevlin to appear as a witness before Judge Crain.

Shevlin figured in the Petrucci case as the ostensible owner of liquor whose transportation was stopped on May 28, 1921, by Detective Sergeants William Morrison and David Lambert. He was among those said to have visited the West Thirtieth Street Station following reports that Lambert and Morrison had extorted $2,500 from his agent, "Billy" Dwyer, and that Dwyer had told them that the liquor belonged to Alfred W. Thor, then Chief of Staff at Police Headquarters, Inspector John O'Brien and Captain John W. O'Connor. He was among the witnesses called before Chief Inspector Lahey at the departmental inquiry into the case.

It was the testimony of Shevlin which was regarded by Mr. Pecora and Mr. Lindsay as particularly damaging to Lambert and Morrison. In addition, however, he was wanted to tell about his relations with Thor and with "Jack" O'Connor, close friend of Thor and Captain O'Connor. "Jack" O'Connor testified that when the liquor was halted, Dwyer, Shevlin's agent, called for him and told him of the alleged bribe.

Others Under Indictment.

Indicted with Shevlin in the United States District Court were "Manny" Kessler, who, Thor admitted yesterday, gave him a check for $2,000—Thor's explanation was that he cashed it for Kessler, although he barely knew him—Peter A. Grimes, and seventeen others. The indictment, returned Nov. 23, 1922, charged the defendants with illegal withdrawals of liquor, illegal possession and violating the Internal Revenue Laws. The Republic Warehouse, 541 West Thirty-fourth Street, was alleged to have been the storage place for much of the liquor, of which 4,900 cases of Scotch and 295 cases of champagne were mentioned specifically in the indictment.

Assistant United States Attorney John Holley Clark said that he had caused Shevlin and Grimes to be ordered to appear yesterday to plead to a superseding indictment. When they failed to appear he moved before Judge Joseph G. Hutcheson that their bonds be forfeited and that bench warrants be issued for their arrest on sight. Judge Hutcheson signed the forfeiture order and issued the warrants. Kessler, who is alleged to have had the principal rôle in the case, is under $50,000 bail, but he was not ordered to appear yesterday.

Thor, on the witness stand before Judge Crain yesterday, was confronted by Mr. Lindsay with a $2,000 check signed by Kessler, made out to cash and bearing Thor's endorsement. Previously Thor, in the face of sharp questioning by Mr. Lindsay, had admitted that he had received a $1,000 check from Kessler. His explanation was that Kessler had asked him to cash it and he had done so on assurances by Shevlin that it was "as good as gold."

The check was drawn on the Bank of America and was dated Sept. 6, 1922. It was endorsed by Thor for deposit in the Irving National Bank and was stamped "paid" on Sept. 8.

Thor plainly was astonished at the production of the check. He flushed and turned uneasily as he scrutinized

FINDS ELLIS ISLAND NEEDS MORE ROOM

Assistant Secretary Wadsworth of Treasury Urges Additional Buildings.

MEDICAL TESTS NEED SPACE

He Would Have Steamship Lines Fined Heavily for Bringing Unfit Persons Here.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—In a report made today on conditions at Ellis Island, Assistant Secretary Wadsworth of the Treasury Department expressed the view that no one visiting the island and studying conditions there "could fail to be critical to a greater or less degree of the facilities."

He recommended that the Department of Labor and the Treasury Department join in asking for an appropriation which would cover the cost of additional structures, with the understanding that the Public Health Service, which comes under the jurisdiction of the Treasury Department, receive adequate space for its needs.

Mr. Wadsworth also suggested that a penalty of from $1,000 to $2,000 be imposed on any steamship company which undertook to land an immigrant whose condition was clearly not up to the health requirements of the immigration laws.

"Of the 2,000 aliens who are now permitted to land each day at Ellis Island," said Mr. Wadsworth, "from 600 to 800 are given an intensive medical examination. Special committees are provided for men and women. Five women doctors are employed for this purpose. With the space available 800 seems to be the maximum number who can be examined in this way. The balance of the aliens, from 1,200 to 1,400, are inspected as they pass out of the waiting room, each one by two doctors.

"With a comparatively small amount of additional space a much larger number of aliens could be given this intensive examination by the existing staff. With more space and a carefully arranged system it is probable that the present staff could give an intensive examination to 2,000 a day.

"My impression of the attitude and efficiency of the doctors in charge was favorable. There are certain minor changes in the system, particularly as to what might be called traffic regulations, for dealing with this great mass of humanity which would, it seems, facilitate the work and make it less trying to those who are undergoing examination. On these points I have already talked with Surgeon General Cumming, and he will at once consider them with the officer of the Public Health Service in command at Ellis Island.

"The medical examination of immigrants is of vital importance to the country. I would not recommend the easing of this examination in any way and I am convinced that the so-called intensive examination should be made to apply to every incoming alien.

"The hospital accommodation is a very considerable one; two large buildings constructed for the purpose are used—one for surgical and medical cases and the other for contagious wards. I was favorably impressed with these buildings, with the organization, the equipment and the cleanliness of the wards, kitchens and lavatory facilities. The quarters for the personnel might well be improved. The construction of an additional building would be required for this purpose.

"It would appear that a certain amount of hospitalization will always be needed to take care of immigrants taken sick during their passage to this country, doubtful cases which require further observation and those cases which are clearly deportable and must be taken care of in a hospital until deported. It would seem entirely reasonable to expect that the demand for hospital service could be reduced by a more careful examination of immigrants before they are taken on board ship at the point of departure.

"For the work for which the Public Health Service is responsible no further appropriation would be needed to cover annual operating expenses, but a material improvement in service could be made if additional space were available. More space for the Public Health Service can only be made available by an allotment from the Department of Labor. There does not appear to be any space in the existing buildings on the island which could be freed for medical work."

NEWPRESS CONTRACT UNDER PREPARATION; LOCAL UNION IGNORED

Publishers Take Up Working Agreement Proposed by International Officers.

WOULD ISSUE CARDS TO MEN

Strikers' Organization Automatically Suspended — More Combined Papers Printed.

The New York newspaper owners and publishers, meeting at the Waldorf last night, issued the following statement at midnight:

"President Berry of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union tonight made a proposal for a new contract with the New York Newspaper Publishers' Association for the operation of their pressrooms by members of that union in place of the Local Union No. 25, which has been outlawed by the International Union because of the unauthorized strike of last Monday night.

"The Publishers' Association began consideration of this proposal tonight and will again take it up at a meeting tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock."

President Berry of the International Union, who conferred with the newspaper owners and publishers from time to time during the meeting, which lasted three hours, declined to make any statement. It is understood that the contract submitted by Mr. Berry to the publishers earlier in the day takes up those points on which an agreement had been previously reached in the direct negotiations between the International Union and the publishers.

The points in agreement included hours for the night and day shifts and the exact status of the lunch periods. No agreemen as to wages and the number to man the presses has yet been reached.

Strikers Told of Publishers' Stand.

President Berry notified David Simons and a committee of New York Web Pressmen's Union No. 25 yesterday that the newspaper owners of New York City refused to have anything further to do with that union because of its illegal strike. Mr. Berry also told Mr. Simons and his associates that he had prepared a proposed contract between the International Union and the publishers under which the International Union would issue working cards to pressmen who were willing to resume work here under terms the International Union would formulate.

Mr. Simons went to Beethoven Hall, where he reported to the strikers the reply of the newspaper owners to Mr. Berry. He told reporters later that he had not yet informed the pressmen that Mr. Berry was negotiating a new contract made with the International. Meantime Mr. Berry submitted his proposed contract to the publishers and discussion of it was begun which continued last night.

Morning and afternoon newspapers continued yesterday to publish combined editions. It was announced by the Publishers' Association that the circulation of Wednesday morning's combined newspapers was 40 per cent. of normal and that of yesterday's newspapers 70 per cent. of normal. Circulation of the combined newspapers on Wednesday afternoon was 45 per cent. of normal and the increase in the circulation of yesterday afternoon's papers was said to have corresponded with the increased circulation of the morning newspapers.

The Executive Board of the International Printing Pressmen's Union, consisting of President Berry, Vice Presidents S. B. Marks of Atlanta, and William H. McHugh of Kansas City, and Secretary-Treasurer Joseph C. Orr, met at the Waldorf at 9 o'clock yesterday morning and formally agreed to continue contract negotiations with the publishers. The executive committee then received Mr. Simons and his associates who remained with them four hours.

"We are not worrying," said Simons, on leaving the room. "We can afford to sit pretty when we have all the men out but seven."

He referred reporters to Mr. Berry.

"He told it to us," said Simons. "Now let him tell it to you. He's the boss."

Mr. Berry's Statement.

Mr. Berry dictated the following statement:

"The only thing in the world that my board members and I did today was to consider the preparation of an international union contract with the newspaper owners under which the international union would accept responsibility of the conduct of the pressrooms.

"I have recommended that we do that and the Board of Directors approved the recommendation. We undertook to prepare an agreement, not complete in form, but at least an agreement to

Wills Third to Missing Son If He Is Found in 25 Years

Provision for the discovery within twenty-five years of a lost son is made in the will of the late George Domidion, which was accepted for probate yesterday by the surrogate of Hudson County, N. J. The will directs that the executors, Joseph Domidion, a nephew, of 442 West Fiftieth Street, New York, and Fred Dieffenbach, attorney, of 248 Harrison Avenue, Jersey City, use a thousand-dollar trust fund to locate the missing son, George Domidion Jr., who disappeared from his home on Sept. 22, 1921.

The estate is left to the nephew, to Mrs. Katherine E. Singer, a niece, and to the missing son, each to receive one-third. If the son is not found in twenty-five years, his third is to be divided among the other two and Mrs. Amelia Hunneck, a niece of Domidion's deceased wife.

ARREST 20 IN CUBA FOR REVOLT TALK

Leaders of Veterans' and Patriots' Organization Accused of Sedition.

GEN. GARCIA VELEZ MISSING

Accused Had Been Holding Meetings Daily and Talking Plainly on Crisis.

HAVANA, Sept. 20 (Associated Press).—Charges of sedition were made today against a number of leaders of the Veterans and Patriots' Association, but before any of them were arrested General Carlos Garcia-Velez, the President, and two other officers of the organization had disappeared, leaving word that meetings of the association had been suspended until further notice.

Half a dozen of the score arrested and later released on their own recognizances appeared in court in the afternoon, but on being informed that the Judge had not been notified, drew up a statement declaring they had answered the summons.

Reports are current that similar arrests had been made in Oriente and Camaguey Provinces, but the reasons for the Government's change of policy, which hitherto had been to permit daily meetings of the organization, were not publicly explained.

The Veterans and Patriots' Association was organized last August and shortly afterward sent President Lavas a petition making numerous demands and charging fraud and corruption in his Administration. The demands included abolition of the national lottery, breaking up of alleged graft among Government officials, woman suffrage and various reforms in the Administration. The pending Tarafa bill, which would establish national ports and consolidate Cuban railroads, was also denounced.

President Zayas replied by saying most of the demands were matters for Congress to act upon and asked for specific charges.

Many speakers at the daily meetings of the association in Havana have talked of the possibilities of revolution if their aims were not attained, and, while the official bulletins of the association generally were of moderate tone, General Garcia-Velez several times openly declared that he "might not be able" to hold the organization's members in check if they continued to be "flouted by the President."

That the leaders of the movement knew something of the Government's intentions in advance is indicated by a notice that appeared today in one of the Havana papers shortly before the arrests were made. It read:

"Pending new orders, the sessions of the Assembly of the Veterans and Patriots are hereby suspended; its members to await resolutions of the Executive Committee, for liberty and country."

It bore General Garcia-Velez's name as President and was dated "somewhere in the country of Cuba, Sept. 20, 1923."

Besides General Garcia-Velez, who is Cuban Minister to Great Britain, a veteran of the Cuban War of Independence and a son of General Garcia to whom Lieutenant Rowan of the American Army carried the famous message, a number of other men prominent in Cuban life are among those charged with sedition.

Colonel Manuel Despaign, Treasurer of the Frank Robbins Company, one of the largest American concerns in Havana; Dr. Oscar Soto, a lawyer, and General Garcia-Velez were the three who could not be found. Until last Spring Colonel Despaign was Secretary of the Treasury in President Zayas's Cabinet. He is Treasurer of the association, while Dr. Soto is its General Secretary.

EXPLOSION WRECKS FEDERAL BUREAU; 3 KILLED, 7 INJURED

WIDE AREA FEELS SHOCK

Men Working in Building Are Hurled About and Hurt by Flying Debris.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—As a result of a terrific explosion at the Bureau of Standards this afternoon, one man was instantly killed, two others later and seven were injured, two seriously. The explosion is believed to have occurred through the ignition of gases by a short-circuited electric wire.

The victims were as follows:

Dead.

LAUER, LOGAN L., 1,324 Vermont Av., instantly killed.
COOK, URBAN J., 3,219 Northampton St., died in Emergency Hospital.
LEE, STEPHEN N., 2,932 Macomb St., died in hospital.

Injured.

KENDIG, JOSEPH E., 2,932 Macomb St., badly burned; condition critical.
RICHARDSON, FRANK E., Falkstone Court, badly burned; condition critical.
CUMMINGS, HENRY K., 407 Trayner St., burns and lacerations; recovery hoped for.
ELLIOTT, G. W., 739 12th St., burns; recovery hoped for.
SMITH, C. M., 4,624 Wisconsin Av., burns and lacerations; will recover.
KOHR, R. F., 1,708 Newton St., lacerations.
BIRDSELL, R. W., 2,409 Brown St., burns and bruises; will recover.

The disaster occurred in the dynamometer laboratory where airplane motors were being tested in a vacuum. When the crash came the ten-inch concrete walls of the chamber where the experiment was being conducted, were completely wrecked, and the big door of the room was blasted from its hinges and thrown through a window, more than twenty feet away.

Every window in the large laboratory was shattered and heavy automobile and airplane motors were hurled through the air. Experts said that the large window area in the walls of the building accounted for the fact that the structure was not a total ruin tonight. The escaping gases went out the window and thus left the brick walls practically intact.

No One in Room at the Time.

Fortunately at the time of the explosion no individual was in the altitude chamber where the airplane motors were being tried out. The injured men were standing about the building or near the windows inside. One man's shirt, collar and tie, were blown off him, while another man one hundred yards from the scene was hurled thirty feet through the air, alighting upright and unhurt on his feet.

The explosion rocked the surrounding country within a radius of five hundred yards and inside of fifteen minutes there was a great throng, even in the suburban neighborhood, where the Government institution is situated. Firemen and policemen immediately took charge of the situation.

Lauer, who was killed, was a student at George Washington University. His father is said to live in Lower Salem, Ohio. His body was hurled fifty feet and was buried beneath débris. It was badly mangled and identification was made by a watch which bore his initials.

The second victim, Urban J. Cook, died this evening in the Emergency Hospital from burns.

Lee, Kendig and Richardson are not expected to live. The trio were terribly burned and also sustained lacerations of serious character.

The death of Lauer was due to the fact that he was seated in front of the heavy, air-tight door of the chamber watching the dials and gauges that recorded the result of the experiment going on inside the sealed chamber. When the door was blasted from its hinges it carried Lauer with it, and buried him beneath the wreckage.

What the exact cause of the explosion was it not known tonight, but it is presumed that the chamber was filled either with gasoline fumes coming from a leak in the feed pipe to the motor, or with carbon monoxide gas from the motor exhaust. Scientists expressed the opinion that, whichever gas it was, it was ignited by a spark from a short circuit.

Investigations into the disaster will be conducted tomorrow, one through the Coroner's inquest to be held over the body of Mr. Lauer, the other by the Bureau of Standards, under the direction of Dr. C. W. Burgess, in charge of the institution. Secretary of Commerce Hoover, under whose jurisdiction the research institute comes, was on the scene of the accident inside of an hour after the explosion took place.

Calls Victims Martyrs to Science.

"The accident is something to be expected in any place where scientific experiments are being conducted," he said. "We are primarily interested now in those who were injured. As for the building, we can repair that damage quickly and get things together in a jiffy. The injured men were martyrs to science."

Coincident with the explosion which filled the dynamometer room with dust and smoke, a fire broke out, and it was feared for a time that the injured men who had not been brought out would be burned to death. However, two alarms sent in brought ten pieces of fire apparatus rushing to the scene, and the fire fighters completed the rescue of the men who had not been already saved.

C. M. Smith was assisting in the test being conducted. He was badly dazed and was unable to give a clear story of what had actually happened.

PLANS 2 CONFERENCES ON THE OPIUM QUESTION

League Commission Votes to Deal Separately With Limiting of Production and Use.

GENEVA, Sept. 20 (Associated Press).—Plans for two conferences on the opium question were definitely formulated at Geneva today. Resolutions were adopted by the League of Nations Opium Commission providing for, first, a conference of the countries having Far Eastern possessions where opium smoking prevails, and, second, an international conference of all countries to determine upon a plan to limit the production of opium and coca leaf and restrict the manufacture of their derivative drugs to scientific and medicinal uses.

The American and French delegations have been working closely together in an endeavor to launch as strong a campaign as possible against the opium evil in all its forms. A delicate question arose today over the calling of a conference for limiting opium-smoking. In India there is considerable eating of opium, and in order to embrace all forms of opium use in the Far East the French representatives proposed that the first conference should consider a means for limiting the use of prepared opium, which might include both uses of the drug. This suggestion was not accepted, but presumably all forms of opium consumption will be discussed at the second general conference.

Stephen G. Porter, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House, presented a reservation that the representatives of the United States desired to place on record that the term "opium for smoking" appearing in today's resolution did not occur in Chapter II. of The Hague opium convention which referred only to prepared opium, and that the use of the term "opium for smoking" was not to be construed as an interpretation of the convention.

Conference No. 2 will be convoked at the earliest possible date after the first conference, and the Commission voted to urge the Assembly to invite to it all countries that are members of the League or parties to The Hague Convention. This would bring in the United States.

Today's resolution also puts on the agenda of the first conference the study of measures which should be taken by China to end the illegal production and use of opium, which are said to be attaining great proportions.

Miller, Battle Creek Inquirer, and Louis H. Brush, Marion Star and East Liverpool Review-Tribune.

69 ASSURE SESSION OF OKLAHOMA HOUSE

15 More Than Majority Sign Call to Act on 21 Charges Against Governor.

COURT UPHOLDS MILITARY

But Soldiers Free Three Prisoners After Tulsa Judge Denies Habeas Corpus Pleas.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 20 (Associated Press)—A special session of the lower house of the Legislature to hear charges that Governor J. C. Walton has overridden the Constitution and laws of the State in his martial law régime is assured, it was announced tonight by W. C. McBee, Representative, in charge of the fight on Walton.

Sixty-nine legislators have signed the call for the convening of the House Wednesday, McBee said. Fifty-four constitutes a majority.

That Governor Walton will not use troops to prevent assembly, despite his earlier threats, was the prediction of McBee and his associates.

E. J. Giddings, one of the Governor's closest legal advisers, announced that he would advise the Governor against interfering with the session.

"Let them go ahead—it is not legal," Giddings asserted.

In a statement issued tonight Murray F. Gibbons, Speaker of the House, and a Walton supporter, declared that the session would be illegal. He appealed to members of the House to consider well before they took any precipitate action.

Leaders of the movement to consider charges against Walton of an impeachable nature announced that Gibbons probably would be deposed as Speaker.

Gibbons expressed the opinion that Walton would not interfere with the legislators. Armed Guardsmen still stood before the doors of the House and Senate Chambers tonight, however.

Legislators for Anti-Klan Law.

Seven members who have signed the session call, including McBee, issued a statement today placing themselves on record as favoring the enactment of an anti-masking law, with severe penalties against floggings or mob violence. This was in reply to Walton's charge that the fight against him was being conducted by Klan members of the Legislature.

N. C. Jewett, Grand Dragon of the Oklahoma Klan, today announced that the Klan would not fight back at Governor Walton. It was the first utterance of the Klan official since his declaration more than a week ago that "Governor Walton and all his cohorts can never break the power of the Klan in Oklahoma." This statement of the Grand Dragon was one of the principal reasons given by Governor Walton for his edict of State-wide martial law.

In a statement tonight Governor Walton declared testimony had been given purporting to expose the inner workings of the Klan in Oklahoma City and designed to show mob violence had been incited. Adding that an effort had been made to cripple him financially in his fight against the order, he appealed for public contributions and declared that if necessary he would "arm every man in this State who is opposed to the Invisible Empire."

Earlier in the day the Governor issued a proclamation calling on the people to repudiate the attempt to assemble the Legislature as a Klan movement. He announced tonight that he would take up tomorrow the question of his position on the session, saying his attitude is still unchanged when asked if he intended to prevent the session by force.

Representative McBee said that Governor Walton, in conjunction with Murray F. Gibbons, Speaker of the House, was contemplating the issuance of a call for a special session "in a last desperate effort, with the hope that some of the boys might be won over to his cause by a show of desire to remedy a situation that he has created."

McBee released the call drawn by House members, he explained, "to beat the Governor to it."

To Sit as Grand Jurors on Charges.

If the special session of the House is convened the members present would sit as Grand Jurors to hear the evidence against the Governor. Should impeachment be voted, the case would go to the Senate, which would be required to convene and act as a court.

The call for the session declared that the time had come to prove or disprove twenty-one charges listed against the Governor. Among them are:

"That he has refused to permit execution of State laws most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

"Stated officially he will not permit capital punishment, thus encouraging the assembling in this State of the worst class of criminals, murderers and gunmen, which has tended to encourage the commission of crime.

"Abused the pardon and parole power.

"Authorized numbers of persons to carry arms.

"Appointed convicts as peace officers.

"Recognized the right of a minority to rule and dictate the policies of State government.

"Approved publicly a doctrine * * * which would substitute for our representative government a system of group dictation such as exists in Russia.

"Combined with others to subject the people to a jurisdiction foreign to the Constitution and unacknowledged by our laws.

"Excited class antagonism and endeavored to array class against class and religion against religion, thereby to gain his political aims and desires.

"Directed certain classes to shoot and kill others, offering immediate pardons.

"Assumed unto himself legislative authority in opposition to the Constitution and laws of the State.

"Appointed multitudes of new officers and sent them throughout the State to harass the people and make them bow to his acts of despotism.

"Called out the national guard and placed the State under martial law without just cause.

"Arbitrarily set aside the writ of habeas corpus.

"Through threats and otherwise sought to render the military independent of and superior to the civil powers.

"That he is establishing in effect, a dictatorship to supplant constitutional government, and using the military forces * * * to enforce his decrees.

"Threatened to arrest the Representatives if they should attempt to assemble.

"Denied freedom of speech and of the press.

"That he has arbitrarily and without cause or provocation suspended private business in this State."

The charge is also made that the Governor suspended a Grand Jury called to inquire into his opposition to a call for a legislative session petitioned by 50,000 voters.

Military Released Three Prisoners.

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 20.—Military power is supreme in Oklahoma, Judge A. C. Hunt ruled today in District Court in dismissing petitions for habeas corpus filed in behalf of three men held by the military officers here for participation in Tulsa County floggings.

Notice of exception to the ruling was filed by State Senator Wash Hudson, counsel for the petitioners. The issue probably will go to the Supreme Court.

Adjt. Gen. B. H. Markham, the State's military commander under martial law, appeared in Judge Hunt's court in answer to a summons from a civil officer but he was permitted to retain custody of the three confessed and sentenced floggers—Grover and Ben Sikes and Earl Sack, in whose behalf the petitions were filed.

Judge Hunt said there was nothing "illegal or unauthorized in the action of General Markham in holding the men for testimony before the Wagoner County Grand Jury in connection with the flogging investigation there."

The decision was acclaimed a victory by all parties.

Within a few hours of the decision word was received from Wagoner County that seven men against whom the detained trio were expected to testify had been indicted by the Grand Jury, thus opening the way for the release of the convicted men to the civil authorities. They were released from military custody tonight.

Those named in the Wagoner County return are A. M. Calloway, William Bills, Avery Barbour, T. V. Venator, Hal Beaman, Dink Fisher, Harve Acers.

The Judge prefaced his decision by a lengthy explanation of his views regarding the right of the civil courts under martial law, in which he declared that "this court has functioned in the full exercise of its lawful power since the Governor's proclamation and will recognize no interference by the military."

He believed the Statewide martial law unjustified.

General Markham said today that he had not been authorized by Governor J. C. Walton to mobilize more troops for duty in Oklahoma City, when advised that it was reported such an order had been issued to prevent convening of the State Legislature next Wednesday.

The fiery cross of the Ku Klux Klan on a hill northeast of Sapulpa was blown up by dynamite last night, word from that city today said.

The cross was not lighted at the time. The concrete base on which it was erected was blown to atoms and a big hole torn in the ground, the cross still was standing today held by wires.

NEWPRESSCONTRACT UNDER PREPARATION

cover some of the points that were discussed with the publishers prior to and since the illegal strike of the members of Local 25. The proposed contract has gone to the stenographer and Mr. White will take it to the owners. This is in line with my previous statements that we would continue negotiating with the newspaper publishers, notwithstanding the strike of the local union."

"Did you revoke the local charter?" Mr. Berry was asked.

"It is automatically suspended. The law of the international union did that the moment they struck."

Asked what further action he would take toward revocation of the charter of the local union, Mr. Berry replied: "That will come later."

"Will you start a new local union?"

"I am in very much of a quandary about that. It is not necessary for us to do that. It is a subject we have not decided upon as yet. The subject of a new charter is one that will not be decided until the publishers act."

"Are the strikers now considered non-union men?"

"No, that would be a mistake. The men are not in good standing in their affiliation with the international union.

International Cards.

"If the publishers and the international union should execute a contract whereby we would accept certain responsibilities in consideration thereof, then we would issue international union cards and it would be our job to fill the places and grant the men working cards.

"The reason for the presence of the representatives of the local unions here was because of the formal statement issued last night by the publishers, which was an answer to the representatives of the pressmen now on strike. They were called here and that statement was read to them and they were advised definitely and frankly that we were considering executing an international contract with the publishers."

Mr. Berry was asked if the signing of such a contract would give the international union the right to bring pressmen in from other cities. He said he had already wired to local unions of web pressmen inviting them to come to New York. "It always follows," he added, "that there is a reluctance to come if no contractual relations exist. Maybe this will be removed by the establishment of contractual relations."

"If the contract is signed does it mean the end of the strike?"

"If it is signed, I am in hopes that the great majority of the men on strike will appreciate the fact that we meant what we said when we told them to return to work. If they are willing to subscribe to certain guarantees we will not throw them into the river and they will go back to work."

The meeting of the pressmen at Beethoven Hall lasted two hours. After it was over Mr. Simons said to reporters: "We made a report. That was all that happened. Mr. Berry is negotiating with the publishers. We reported only what transpored at last night's session between Mr. Berry and the publishers."

"Did you discuss the subject of the proposed international contract?" he was asked.

"The matter of the international contract did not come up," he replied.

From other sources it was learned that Mr. Simons told the pressmen not to worry if their charter was revoked. "We would take a Chinaman's ticket if we got what we wanted," he is reported to have said. The pressmen were told that nothing would be done by Mr. Berry or any one else without their sanction and that they would have to ratify every step.

"Don't worry what happens to your cards," was another admonition the men received. It was also intimated to the men that if the charter were withdrawn and another union instituted they need not be concerned.

The Publishers' Attitude.

The attitude of the newspaper owners and publishers toward the striking pressmen upon which yesterday's developments centred, was expressed in a statement issued by them at 12:30 o'clock yesterday morning and printed in laet editions of THE TIMES and the other combined newspapers. This statement, which was made in answer to two proposals for a settlement presented by Mr. Berry on behalf of the local union, was as follows:

"In answer to all proposals made to us today, the following statement expresses the unanimous attitude of the newspaper owners of New York City:

"Teh local union has precipitated the strike which you have declared to be illegal. You have assured us since the local union has precipitated such a strike that you would outlaw the local union and give a charter to another union. We will not deal further with this defiant union. We await your promised action to revoke the charter of this defiant local union and to charter a legal union. Pending your action, we will continue to print our newspapers as we are now doing independently of the present local organization.

"We will arbitrate all questions with the inetrnational union or with any legal local union created by the international union as we have heretofore agreed to arbitrate."

Police Scatter Disturbers.

Twenty-five men, slad to have been striking employes of The Daily News, bathered in front of the office of that newspaper at 25 Park Place yesterday morning and were dispersed by police using night sticks. Two sergeants and fourteen patrolmen, on reserve duty at the Oak Street Station, hurried to The Daily News office after an alarm had been sent to Deputy Chief Inspector Cornelius F. Cahalne at Police Headquarters tht trouble was expected.

Another instance of violence in connection with the strike reported yesterday was an attack by strikers or their sympathizers on a newspaper delivery wagon on the Manhattan Bridge yesterday morning. Ten additional automobiles were placed at the disposal of Deputy Inspector William J. McGrath. Owing to the efficient police protection supplied to the newspaper offices and to newspaper deliveries by Chief Inspector William Leahy, and carried out in the uptown district by Captain Anthony Howe of Motor Squad No. 1 and Captain Thomas Mularkey of the Twenty-sixth Precinct, there has so far been little violence. Besides the motorcycle police twenty police automobiles have been available as escorts for all drivers who desired protection.

COMMENT ON THE STRIKE.

Philadelphia Ledger Sees No Excuse for the Wrong Thus Inflicted.

From The Philadelphia Public Ledger.

A strike at midnight, when no opportunity was offered the publishers to turn around, yesterday morning deprived the people of New York City of their newspapers and inflicted an injury and inconvenience upon the public that will be deeply resented and will do no good to the web printing pressmen responsible for the wrong. The strike itself was illegal under the rules of their union and has not only been repudiated by the officers of the International Union, but was made the subject of a warning before the step was taken by the New York local. Action of this sort will do far greater injury to the union than it will inflict upon the newspapers affected, and the interruption of a vital service to the public was a wrong for which there does not appear to be one palliating excuse.

Good Wishes from Yonkers.

From The Yonkers Herald.

Newspaper publishers generally entertain a feeling of warm gratitude for the New York publishers. In their dealings they have been even generous and magnanimous.

Upon the occasion of the unfortunate strike in the Yonkers newspaper plants of two years ago, a standard of ethics was established by them in declining to send a single copy of their publications into this city in addition to the ordinary number, thus refusing to take advantage during the period of the lock-out of the local publications that were helpless. That and other courtesies extended from time to time, notably during the frantic period of the newsprint shortage of several years ago have left an indelible impression not to be forgotten.

To the big brothers of the profession we say: "Be of good cheer and may your trouble soon be over."

9 FREED IN CARNEGIE RIOT.

Trials for Inciting Klan Fight Result in Acquittal.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 20.—Nine men arraigned before Alderman George J. Anderson today on the charge of inciting to riot in connection with recent fighting between members of the Ku Klux Klan and residents of Carnegie, in which one Klansman was killed, were discharged.

The Alderman, in dismissing the case, said that he had reached his decision because of the contradictory nature of the evidence given regarding the beginning of the fighting.

Three other men arrested on the same charge were not present at the hearing today, but their cases were included in the dismissal.

Patrick J. McDermott, a Carnegie undertaker, who was accused of firing the fatal shot and later released by the County Coroner, was one whose case was dismissed.

District Attorney S. H. Gardner declined to state tonight whether any further action would be taken against the men.

TURKS WELCOME GERMANS.

3,000 Business Men, Expelled by Allies, Are Expected to Return.

Copyright, 1923, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 20.—About 3,000 German business men expelled from Turkey under the old armistice terms will return here immediately when the Allied evacuation is completed on Oct. 5. Allied merchants who have prospered under the lack of competition from this quarter are considerably disturbed.

The appointment of Herr Krutz, organizer of the Agricultural Bank during the war, to be Director General, has brought protests from Allied financiers who fear the Turkish plan to make this a leading banking country. Besides allowing the Germans to return and take up their business where they left off, numerous Turks are favoring giving their old ally public concessions to defeat the allied projects which it is feared may eventually afford a basis for national intervention.

The French demanded a radio concession on turning over the Osmanli station built by the Germans during the war. The Turks refused, saying they were operating their own radio plants, but it is understood that they are negotiating with Germany for equipment.

Hugo Stinnes has opened an office here and is publishing a newspaper and asking for mineral and railroad concessions; but the Turks so far have even refused to allow him to make a survey.

ANDERSON ATTACKS PRESS.

Hits New York Papers and Sees a Conspiracy Afoot.

NEWBURGH, N. J., Sept. 20.—Speaking at the Conference of the Newburgh District of the New York Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Wawarsing this afternoon, William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, made an attack on New York newspapers and charged a politico-ecclesisastical conspiracy to destroy both prohibition and the public schools. In part he said:

Many of the strongest dailies in the up-State cities in New York are now honestly committed to dry enforcement. But in New York City Tammany, an alien influence in American life, exploiting racial and so-called religious prejudice in its conspiracy to wreck prohibition, is in fact most effectively helped by the New York City newspapers generally.

"Only one newspaper in Greater New York City, and that is in Brooklyn and not generally known throughout the nation as a 'leading' New York City paper, has had either the common honesty or the rudimentary ultimate intelligence to indicate any desire for, let alone make a fight, for a square deal and a fair trial for the executive officer of the agancy of 5,000 Protestant churches which these newspapers lack the courage to fight in the open.

Probably nowhere else in America except in a few cities wholly in the grip of the same machine and under the same wet politico-ecclesiastical control as Tammany exercises over New York, could such tacit newspaper support through silence be secured for such a conspiracy.

"The attack by Tammany on prohibition is fundamentally to thwart the American conscience as expressed through the Protestant churches. The attempt in New York City to destroy the public school system, of which the inexcusable failure of the Tammany administration to provide facilities may easily be a vital part, is an effort to uproot American intelligence.

"The reason is not hard to understand. This kind of politico-ecclesiastical combination cannot possibly win out and obtain control of the Government of the United States, as it has already gotten complete control of the government of the largest city of the most populous State in the nation if the conscience of the typical American is freely working on an intelligent basis of adequate information. This kind of a wet combination not only wants the American electorate ignorant, but wants it drunken. It realizes that if the American people are intelligent they will not stay drunk, and that if they are sober they will not stay ignorant. One reason for wet hatred of the public schools is because, under the law, for more than a generation, they have taught the affect of alcohol on the human mind and body, and thus laid the foundation for prohibition."

AID MAID IN MURDER CASE.

Sympathizers to Raise Fund if Necessary in Windham Mystery.

Special to The New York Times.

CATSKILL, N. Y., Sept. 2.—District Attorney Charles G. Coffin today notified Percy W. Decker, attorney for Mrs. Esther Litt, who was under surveillance at Windham up to last Friday as a material witness, in connection with the murder of Howard Rothenberg, 7 years old, that his client would be required to file a $1,000 bond to insure her appearance here when called.

Mrs. Litt left on Monday for her home in Brooklyn after the District Attorney had declared that no bail bond would be required, and that she was free to leave whenever she wished. Mr. Decker had made arrangements to secure the bond when informed that it was not necessary, he said.

Residents of Catskill and the surrounding towns are prepared to raise a fund by popular subscription for the defense of Anna Sobin, the 16-year-old nursemaid, formerly employed by the Rothenbergs, should an attempt be made to indict her when the Grand Jury meets here during the second week of November.

Mrs. Rose Rothenberg, mother of the murdered boy, replied yesterday in Newark to charges made by the District Attorney that she had not co-operated with the authorities in their effort to find the slayer of her boy. She declared that she had done everything she could to co-operate with the police, and that she would never rest until the guilty person is found.

TAMMANY TO YIELD TO BAR ON 2 JUDGES

Democrats Expected to Endorse Bijur and Gavegan for Supreme Court.

MURPHY WARY OF FIGHT

Defeat in Newburger Campaign Said to Have Prompted Conciliatory Stand.

For all of Tammany's determination not to seek the sanction of the bar for its candidates for the Supreme Court prior to nomination, it was learned yesterday that for political expediency Tammany probably would indorse Justices Nathan Bijur and Edward J. Gavegan, whose re-election has been recommended by the lawyers.

Justice Bijur is a Republican and Justice Gavegan owes his election as a Supreme Court Justice to the influence of William R. Hearst. If their names go on the Tammany slate as now seems probable it will be against the advice of many of Murphy's advisers who are urging that Tammany is strong enough to go it alone.

Mr. Murphy at first seemed inclined to heed their counsel but haunted by memories from 1919 when the attempt to turn down Justice Joseph E. Newburger for re-election, led to defeat for Tammany's candidates in its own stronghold, the Tammany chieftain kept his mind open. But if his change of heart undoubtedly will be attributed to the declaration of former Justice Clarence M. Shearn at the Bar Association conference on Tuesday that for Tammany to ignore the demands for persons fit for the ten vacancies on the Supreme Court bench, would mean war.

As far as the committee headed by Justice Alfred R. Page, which was appointed by the New York County Republican Committee to confer with the Bar Association on the matter, is concerned, Tammany's refusal at the Bar Association conference to make common cause will not affect its plan to disregard political complexions in the selection of candidates. The committee, it was learned yesterday, will endorse not only Justice Bijur but also Justice Gavegan, although the latter is a Democrat.

Among other Democratic names under consideration, it was learned yesterday, is that of Joseph M. Proskauer, who is presumably on Tammany's slate of acceptable candidates. Friends of Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan, another Democrat, have urged upon the Page committee that it would be politically expedient, in view of reecnt developments in the police investigation, to reserve a place for him on the anti-Tammany judiciary slate.

Ex-Justice Page said yesterday that his committee was receiving many suggestions and that the lists would be kept open until noon Monday, when there will be a meeting of the committee in the National Republican Club. The Republican Judiciary Convention will be held on Sept. 29.

Mr. Page declined to make public any of the names that had been suggested. It was learned, however, that among those being considered are Robert McC. Marsh, Charles H. Strong, former President of the City Club; ex-Congressman Isaac Siegel, William J. Millard, Assistant United States Attorney; former Deputy Attorney General Charles E. Buckner, former Municipal Court Justice Owen S. Tierney and Douglas Mathewson, former Borough President of the Bronx.

There is little likelihood that the Tammany slate will appear in finished form much before the Judiciary Convention, which will be held on the evening of Oct. 1. One prominent Tammanyite, however, said he would not be surprised if these names were found on it: Justices Bijur, Gavegan, Joseph M. Proskauer and Jeremiah T. Mahoney; George W. Olvany, head of the Tammany Hall Law Committee; Judge Thomas C. T. Crain of the Court of Genera. Sessions; Charles D. Donohue, Democratic leader of the Assembly; former District Attorney Edward J. Glennon of Bronx County, Magistrate Charles A. Oberwager and Justice Louis A. Valente of the City Court.

CALL WARD LAWYER AS STATE WITNESS

husband, now and then chatting cheerfully with him.

The entry of the automatic pistol and the Smith & Wesson revolver came during the examination of Mr. Campbell. Before he was called to the stand the lawyers conferred to see if his evidence could not be put in without his exchanging the rôle of defense cross-examiner for that of witness for the prosecution. This failed when Mr. O'Neill turned away abruptly and called Mr. Campbell to the witness box.

In respose to questions Mr. Campbell said that he had been an attorney for twenty years, and that he had been first consulted in the Ward case on May 18, 1922, atfer Ward had gone to see State Senator Ellwood M. Rabenold, a member of Mr. Campbell's firm. Mr. Campbell told of accompanying Senator Rabenold and the defendant to the home of Sheriff Werner in Rye, on May 19, and of turning over the pistols to the Sheriff on a subsequent date. The lawyer did not have the Sheriff's receipt for the weapons with him, so Mr. O'Neill employed a copy of the receipt for the purpose of idientifying them. This procedeure was accompanied by a running fire of objections by former Justice Isaac N. Mills, chief of counsel for the defense.

Sheriff Werner followed with an identification of the weapons as those turned over to him by Mr. Campbell on behalf of Ward. Chief Cody was then called. He testified that he had been head of the New Rochelle police force for thirty-three years and that at the time of the alleged blackmail and the death of Peters, Ward was Chairman of the Board.

"Did Ward ever tell you that he had been threatened by blackmailers?" asked Mr. O'Neill.

Defense Objection Sustained.

Judge Mills at once interposed an objection and was promptly sustained by Justice Wagner. When Mr. O'Neill sought to ascertain if the defendant had complained that his family had been threatened, Judge Mills's objection was again sustained. The Special Deputy Attorney General then handed the .38 calible pistol to the witness. Judge Mills objected on the ground that the pistol had already been identified.

"That's all right," said Mr. O'Neill, "I want to identify it some more."

"Did you give a .38 calibre Colt pistol to Ward?" the Chief was asked.

"Yes."

"When?"

"In 1921, somewhere around the holiday season."

"Do you remember the size and what it looked like?"

"Yes."

"You also gave Ward a smaller gun, like this?"

Mr. O'Neill at this point showed the Smith & Wesson revolver to the witness.

"Yes," said Cody, "the gun I gave Ward looked exactly like that one."

Replying to other questions, the witness said he thought he could identify guns merely from their looks. He said that Ward never had told him that he had killed a man, and, questioned as to Ward's ability as a marksman, Chief Cody said that at the regular police practice Ward had hit a target sixteen inches in width every time from a distance of fifty feet. Chief Cody identified the pistol permit issued to Ward. Cross-examination of Chief Cody by Mr. Campbell was deferred until this morning.

How Peters Was Identified

The first witness of the day was Raymond A. Hill, Deputy Sheriff and fingerprint expert of Westchester County. He told of taking Peters's fingerprints on May 16, 1922, and said that he had broadcast the description of the dead man and that he had received the information that the prints corresponded to those of Clarence M. Peters. This information came in a telegram from the Bureau of Navigation of the Navy Department at Washington, he said.

The witness added that he had also received a report from the Boston police. This was developed by Mr. Campbell in cross-examination. Hill testified that on May 23 he had received a letter and a card from the Boston authorities the card showing that on Nov. 13, 1921, Peters had been arrested in Boston for stealing an automobile worth $450. The card was admitted in evidence, but the letter was ruled out on objection from Mr. O'Neill.

Harry Miller, conductor on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad train that took Peters from Paris Island, S. C., to Philadelphia on May 14, after he had been rejected as a marine, identified the ticket used by Peters. William I. Sutherland, ticket agent at Port Royal, the train point for Paris Island, also gave evidence as to Peters's trip North.

Sergeant Lynn S. Mayo, stationed at Paris Island, testified that Peters did not leave the reservation during the time he was there, from April 28 to May 14, and that the dead man had asked him for a small loan when he was leaving. Mayo said that he refused the loan. Abraham L. Smith, Government accountant, identified photostatic copies of Peters's transportation orders. Corporal Winfield S. Buzard of the marines gave the evidence about the automobile. He said that he remembered the arrival of Peters at the post.

Peters's Movements Traced.

"When he was brought to the place I was in charge of," said the witness, referring to the entry room for applicants, "I checked his civilian clothes and gave him a suit of overalls, which we give every man who comes there. We kept his civilian clothes until he went home. This is done to all, and we examine them to see if they have anything like a revolver on them or knives or anything like that. We give them a little talk about what they were to do around there and what they were not to do, and that was about all I could say on that for that night."

"Did you find any revolver on him?" asked Deputy Attorney General Wilber W. Chambers, who conducted the direct examination of this witness. Judge Mills, for the defense, objected, but was overruled. The witness finally said that he had not found any weapon.

The witness testified that when Peters left he had asked the Corporal if he had not some better clothing to give him, complaining that the suit he had worn down was badly worn. Corporal Buzard said that he had given to Peters a brown suit, with a fine white pencil stripe, from among the suits not reclaimed by men who had been admitted to the service.

"Do you recall what kind of a pair of shoes was assigned to him?" asked Mr. Chambers.

"I first gave him a pair of high-topped shoes," the witness replied. "He did not seem to like them. He got to looking around and he found a pair of low-cut patent leather slippers, which he said he had worn down to the island. He told me that he was a dancing instructor on the 'outside,' and he would like to have those shoes back again. So I gave him the low-cut patent leather shoes."

Corporal Buzard identified the suit in which Peters was dressed when found dead, but said that the shoes found on the body were not the patent leather dancing pumps. The Corporal also failed to recognize a rather dainty white handkerchief as "marine issue." Mr. Campbell then took up the cross-examination.

Said He Had Wife and Child.

"He told you that he was a dancing instructor?"

"Yes, he did."

"Do you recall his telling you that he had a wife and child?"

"Yes, I do now. I asked him why he was being discharged from the Marine Corps, and he said on account of a wife and child."

The lawyer then established from the witness that Peters had not had the cheap silvered cigarette case, found when his body was discovered, when he was trying to join the Marine Corps. He also went at some length into the thoroughness with which Peters had been searched when he appeared at the post. Campbell then picked up the white handkerchief.

"Did you see this lady's handkerchief in his possession?" he asked.

"I did not."

"I move to strike out the answer," said Mr. Chambers, "on the ground that there is no evidence yet that it is a lady's handkerchief."

"Strike is out," said Justice Wagner to the stenographer.

"When he told you about going away," resumed Mr. Campbell, "did he tell you something about his plans."

"No."

"Did he tell you something about his inclinations?"

Mr. O'Neill's objection was sustained.

"What conversation did you have with him?"

"I didn't have any conversation with him the day he left there."

"Wasn't there something about a Stutz car?"

Justice Wagner overruled the objection by the State.

"Not the day he left," said the witness, and another wrangle between the lawyers resulted. The witness finally said that Peters had spoken about a car "some time during his stay on Paris Island."

Argue About Make of Car.

"And what did he say about it?"

"Well, it was rather a hot day and we were talking about—I was not paying much attention to what he was saying, but he said, 'If I was on the outside, I would not be working, I would be driving out to the park some place,' and he did not say any Stutz car, and I don't—as I remember it—but I thought he said Stutz car, with the windshield laid back and taking a nice, cool breeze."

The confusion of the witness's statement about the style of the car led to another heated debate between counsel. Finally Mr. Campbell turned to Corporal Buzard's testimony before the Extraordinary Grand Jury that indicted Ward, and read Buzard's examination on this point.

Earl N. Hardy, uncle of Peters, gazed often at Ward when he took the witness stand, but the defendant was half-faced away and seldom returned the stare. Mr. Hardy testified that his nephew was 19 years old when he was killed. He said that he was Quartermaster of the National Guard unit at Haverhill, of which Peters had been a member at one time, and that Peters's attendance at drill had been "fairly good." Later, on examination by Mr. Campbell, he said that the youth had attended about 50 per cent. of the drills.

He testified that Peters had been a day laborer, and that his longest job had been two weeks on a Boston dock for a fruit company. He said that he never had seen Peters with a revolver. He admitted that Peters, about the armory, had been "inclined to argue," but that he was not of a quarrelsome disposition.

Under cross-examination, he said that Peters never had mentioned the name of Ward. Mr. Campbell asked the witness if he knew about five convictions against Peters. The witness knew of only one, he said.

The convictions cited by the attorney were: Theft of a Red Cross collection box in 1919; theft of a $6 check to bearer on the First National Bank of Farmington, Me., in May, 1920; theft of a $25 watch at Essex, Mass., June 8, 1921; larceny of two letters and check in 1919, and illegal use of motor vehicles at Haverhill, June 23, 1920.

The witness explained that the use of the automobile, cited by the defense as a crime, had consisted in a "joy ride" with other boys, after which the car had been left at a curb. He denied that the boy drank or gambled, and said that he never had mentioned "Charley Ross" or "Jack Rogers."

Lieutenant Eugene C. Roberts Jr., with the Batavia unit of the State Troopers, and Sheriff Werner identified the .380-calibre exploded cartridge found fifteen feet from the body of Peters.

Court adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

EARTHQUAKE RATTLES WINDOWS IN ENGLAND

Disturbance Is Felt in Norfolk Towns—Serious Shocks Unknown There.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—A slight earth tremor occurred yesterday noon at Cromer, Norfolk, says The Daily Mail. The vibration was accompanied by a loud rumbling, while windows rattled and ornaments within houses were displaced.

The tremor was felt in many of the parishes on the east coast, including Cromer, Mundesley and Sheringham, but apparently it was not noticed far inland. The time of the shock was 11:52 A. M.

The vibration was especially felt by people seated or lying down, but not many persons standing or walking noticed it. It was clearly perceptible on upper floors of large buildings. Windows, bric-à-brac and china were shaken in numerous houses.

Men working on a tennis court in Cromer said they felt the earth move for ten seconds, while the strong iron standards supporting the wire netting around the courts shook as if caught by a violent wind.

One suggested cause of the tremor was an explosion at sea, but nothing of this nature has so far been reported.

While minor earth shocks have occasionally occurred in England, there is no record of a serious disturbance ever having taken place.

ERIE MUST PAY WAGE CUT.

Labor Board Orders Restoration of Reduction to Clerks.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Reimbursement by the Erie Railroad of clerks to the extent of the wage loss they suffered during January, 1921, when a wage reduction was made, was ordered yesterday by the Railroad Labor Board.

The board stated that wages were reduced approximately 40 per cent. and held the reduction was a violation of wage decision No. 2 of July, 1920, by which the Erie and the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks were affected.

New York Leaders Visit Coolidge.

BULGARIA BLAMES MOSCOW FOR PLOT

Says Russians Engineered Reds and Peasants' Plan to Overthrow Sofia Government.

BUT PROJECT WAS FOILED

Severe Fighting Is Said to Have taken Place in Connection With the Plot.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Reuter's, Ltd., says it learns that the Bulgarian Minister of the Interior has made a statement at Sofia on the recent Communist activities and the report of an outbreak of revolution. He added that the documents seized in the hands of arrested Communist leaders proved that a coup d'état had been planned for Sept. 16 in conjunction with the Agrarian Party.

The Minister also claimed to possess documentary evidence that the Moscow Government, in conjunction with Bulgarian Communists, was trying to foment distrust in Yugoslavia of the new Bulgarian Government, with the purpose of provoking an armed conflict between the two countries. It is asserted that the Minister admitted that there had been some casualties in connection with the arrest of the Communists and the searches of Communist headquarters.

SOFIA, Sept. 20.—Sanguinary fighting is reported from Eastern Rumelia, Bulgaria, where bands of Communists attacked the police stations and barracks at Stara Zagora, Nova Zagora, Tchirpan and two villages, with the object of liberating a number of their comrades arrested ten days ago. Troops were called out to disperse the Communists.

Six Communists were killed and six wounded at Stara Zagora and one soldier and a civilian spectator were injured.

The aim of the rioters was said to have been the establishment of a Soviet Government. The rising at Nova Zagora was suppressed with difficulty. According to an announcement by the Premier, order was not disturbed elsewhere.

Plans for a Communist coup d'état in Bulgaria were recently nipped, according to previous advices from Sofia, and more than fifty of the leaders were put in jail. Documents seized in raids on Communist clubs showed that the movement was to have begun with a general strike paralyzing the railroads, postal system and telegraph and telephone lines.

Advices received through Belgrade said that martial law had been proclaimed at several points. It was also reported from this source that members of the Agrarian Party were acting with the Communists.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—The Bulgarian Legation in Paris denied today the existence of any revolutionary movement in Bulgaria. The legation suggests that reports of the attempt to overthrow the Government, contained in Belgrade advices Wednesday, arose over the searches made in some remote Bulgarian villages after the arrest on Sept. 12 of a number of Communists found to be in touch with the Russian Soviet Government.

Disorders broke out at that time between the police and civilians, during which some casualties occurred. An official telegram received late last night by the legation said that the dead number only three or four and the wounded about a dozen.

Denials that a revolution is in progress in Bulgaria came from several other points. The French Foreign Office had no news of such a development up to noon today, and a London dispatch carried a disclaimer from the Bulgarian Legation in the British capital. A similar statement was made by the Bulgarian delegation to the League of Nations, which declared that perfect order prevails throughout the Kingdom, says a message from Geneva.

Despite all these denials, the impression persisted that considerable unrest existed in some parts of Bulgaria, and that reports of many casualties might not be altogether without foundation.

BERLIN PLANS OFFER OF CASH TO FRANCE

Ardor of Ruhr Resisters Cools as Stresemann Withdraws Subsidy for Idleness.

BALDWIN LEAVING PARIS

Conference With Poincare to Be Resumed in Two Weeks, Possibly in London.

BERLIN, Sept. 20 (Associated Press).—A semi-official statement referring to reports current in Paris of possible Franco-German negotiations makes it clear that no practical results can be obtained without the restoration of normal economic activity in the Ruhr, with amnesty and permission to those expelled to return, and that the administration must be placed in the hands of German officials and freedom of traffic between occupied and unoccupied Germany restored.

The statement declares that such conditions would permit reparation payments, beginning with the evacuation of the Ruhr, but that Germany can never agree to recognize in any form the legality of the occupation of the Ruhr.

That Belgium is attempting to mediate in the Ruhr conflict is admitted at the Foreign Office, where, it is stated, the Belgian Minister has been a frequent caller of late and has candidly discussed the situation with Chancellor Stresemann in what is considered to be somewhat more than a merely informal manner.

Ready to Offer a Cash Payment.

The German Government also is reported as being prepared to offer France an early, if not immediate, cash payment in the event of its plan of hypothecating German private properties is accepted as a basis for new reparations. In such case, it was stated, the Government would be in a position by virtue of its lien on the holdings of industrialists, banks, commerce and agriculture to mobilize sufficient ready cash to appease the French demand for something tangible at the earliest possible date, as it was Germany's desire to give concrete evidence of her good faith as soon as the Ruhr conflict was adjusted.

Now that reparations and the Ruhr are again topics of formal conversations between Great Britain and France, and a decisive turn in the Ruhr deadlock is likely to occur, the Berlin editors are indulging in the familiar recriminations respecting capitulation and references to "the Ruhr Panama."

"Rather a breach with France than surrender of our honor by capitulation in the Ruhr," says the Kreuz-Zeitung, which charges Chancellor Stresemann with having "cultivated the capitulation sentiment," inasmuch as he was continually emphasizing Germany's inability further to finance passive resistance. Vorwärts declares: "The manner in which Ruhr credits are squandered suggests a Panama affair of monstrous proportions."

That the Ruhr and Rhineland industrialists are heavily indebted to the Government in this connection is asserted by the Vossische Zeitung, which says that although the official subsidies granted to "big business" in connection with the participation of big business in passive resistance were calculated on a basis of material values since May 1, neither of the parties to the agreement appears inclined to consider the obligation as still binding.

Subsidy, Withdrawn, Ardor Cools.

Since the Government formally announced its inability further to finance the passive resistance in the Ruhr and Rhineland there has been a marked cooling of the ardor in the ranks of the resisters, and one of the immediate effects of the withdrawal of official credits to the industrialists, employers and labor organizations is reflected in the growing inclination on the part of many workers to return to their former posts.

The altered mental attitude apparent in the occupied areas is not ascribed to wavering patriotic faith in Germany's cause, but is explained on the ground of widespread conviction that the social chaos which followed in the wake of the passive campaign now has reached proportions which are making life unbearable.

Especial reference is made to the interruption of such ordinary conveniences as the posts, telegraph and railways and the further realization that cold weather is not far ahead and that there is immediate necessity of making provisions for the Winter.

Numerous rural and urban communities throughout the occupied areas have been without regular mail service for months, in addition to being deprived of the use of private telephones.

While these are only some of the ordinary comforts with which the resisters were content to dispense in the early flush of their patriotic fight against the French and Belgian invaders, prolonged privations of a purely social nature now are contributing to the restiveness which is crystallizing into realization that several million Germans have been without the ordinary comforts of home for eight months, while many more millions outside the French and Belgian zones have been showering applause on their fellow citizens from more favorable coigns of vantage.

It is this frame of mind of which the Ruhr and Rhineland populace has become possessed that in a large measure has influenced Chancellor Stresemann's determination to seek redemption from the burdens of occupation for the populace of the affected zones.

"They can't stand it any longer," one Government leader declared. He believed the human equation must be considered quite as much as the economic and political phases of the situation and permitted the inference that the Government would not discourage the inclination on the part of the resisters on the official payrolls to resume their former jobs with the railway, posts and telegraph administrations, despite the existing ordinances against such action.

This precedent has already been established at various points in the occupied areas, where the postal employes and telephone operators have resumed work with the approval of the local German sentiment. While this practice may be condoned here, it is stated officially that its prevalence does not indicate official scrapping of the passive resistance program or a modification of the Government's general attitude on the subject.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 20.—The Belgian Government denies the German report that it has tried to persuade French Government to impose unacceptable conditions on Germany for evacuation of the Ruhr.

The Belgian Government maintains its demand that as preliminary to any arrangement with Germany passive resistance in the Ruhr must cease. It is declared that the conversations begun by the German Chancellor with the Belgian Minister in Berlin have never had the character of official negoiations, and that the Belgian Government has not [illegible] a new memorandum containing [illegible] proposals.

FREE HAND FOR FRANCE.

Britain to Do Nothing to Hamper Victory in Ruhr Fight.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—Deep satisfaction [illegible] on all sides at the meeting [illegible] between Prime Minister [illegible] and Premier Poincaré [illegible] a resumption of co-operation [illegible] England and France. [illegible] was increased by an announcement late today that the two Premiers would meet again in two weeks, possibly in London.

With the exception of some remarks about England planning to be on hand Paris press receives warmly the resumption of the relations broken off in Jan- to share in any German payments the Ruhr. This feeling is accentuated by semi-official assurances that England will do nothing to embarrass France in carrying on the Ruhr fight to a successful conclusion.

It is admitted here that Chancellor Stresemann recently sounded Paris and Brussels to obtain promises of what France and Belgium would do in case of the end of passive resistance and it is stated that the reply was that France and Belgium required German surrender without conditions, leaving the occupying countries free to change the occupation as they saw fit. The Journal des Débats sums up the French attitude thus:

"For the peace of the whole world, for the re-establishment of the normal life of Europe, for the safeguarding of right and morality, it is necessary that the supreme effort of a conquered and guilty people to escape the just penalty of its wrongs should fail without equivocation."

Mr. Baldwin spent the day at Versailles and will go to London tomorrow, paying a visit of courtesy to M. Poincaré before leaving. It is stated both at the Quai d'Orsay and the British Embassy that there will be no political discussion tomorrow.

Baldwin Pleased With Poincare.

PARIS, Sept. 20 (Associated Press).—Prime Minister Baldwin is declared by persons near him to have been agreeably surprised by the personality of Premier Poincaré. The British Prime Minister, they say, found his French colleague kindly and reasonable, receptive toward ideas advanced by the British statesman and disposed to give full weight to the considerations brought to his attention.

Mr. Baldwin had formed a different conception of the French Premier and appears to have expected to meet a cold, dry, obstinate man.

Neither of the Prime Ministers will comment for publication on their interview, each seemingly having the same idea that the favorable impression evidenced in the newspapers of both countries this morning ought to be left to stand.

London Expects No Policy Change.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Premiers Baldwin and Poincaré have convinced each other of their sincerity and desire to make Germany pay. That is the indication official political opinion puts on the Paris communiqué.

Such mutual understanding at a moment when Germany seems on the eve of an overture of special value cannot result in immediate alteration of declared national policies, itis pointed out. Moreover, Mr. Baldwin can hardly take a radical step on his own initiative only a fortnight before the dominion Premiers assemble.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The London press is evidently in no hurry to draw conclusions from the official report of the Baldwin-Poincaré talk in Paris yesterday. Several of the leading newspapers refrain from comment entirely, while such views as are expressed elsewhere are mostly non-committal or merely speculative.

The Morning Post describes the Premiers' conversation as a fruitful one, with which there is every reason to be satisfied. This newspaper seems to infer, although rather guardedly, that France and Great Britain are now to co-operate with respect to reparations.

"The fundamental stumbling block was the recalcitrancy of the debtor, and that block is now being removed," says The Post's editorial, basing this statement upon the conviction in several quarters here that passive resistance in the Ruhr has collapsed or is about to collapse.

The Daily News, one of the strongest opponents of the French policy, holds the same view regarding the collapse in the Ruhr, but says the problem for France must nevertheless continue acute. It cannot see how Great Britain can co-operate with France in a policy London has already condemned.

The diplomatic expert of The Daily Telegraph warns the public not to build excessive hopes upon "even so gratifying a communiqué as that issued at Paris yesterday."

The Daily Express centres its attention upon the statement that no definite solution was reached, and reports that Mr. Baldwin was wholly unable to conform to the French view and may therefore be expected upon his return to London to develop a policy tantamount to separate action.

PLEADS WITH BAVARIANS.

Hindenburg Urges Them to Preserve the "True Prussian Faith."

MUNICH, Bavaria, Sept. 20.—"Don't secede from the empire, not even temporarily, but preserve the true Prussian faith," was the farewell advice of Field Marshal von Hindenburg to General Ludendorff, Dr. von Kahr, Professor Bauer and other of the Bavarian leaders on his leaving Bavaria today.

The Field Marshal, who has been spending the Summer in the Bavarian highlands, is returning to Hanover. His departing admonition was especially addressed to the Bavarian patriotic societies.

Methodist Conferees in London Appeal for Action on Smuggling.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The International Methodist Committee, representing the Methodist conferences of all the countries in the world, met at Westminster today and passed a resolution protesting against the smuggling of liquor into the United States by citizens of other countries, pledging its support to the Methodist churches in America in obtaining enforcement of the prohibition law.

The resolution requests the British Government to take without delay the requisite steps to prevent the continuation of smuggling liquor from the West Indies, "and so remove this grave cause of international misunderstanding and resentment."

The hope also is expressed that the negotiations between the United States and Canada will result in the early suppression of smuggling across the border.

RENEW OGLETHORPE QUEST

Dr. Jacobs Again Seeks Permission to Dig for General's Body.

LONDON, Sept. 20. — Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, President of Oglethorpe University, is again seeking permission to search for the body of General James E. Oglethorpe, founder of the State of Georgia, in the church at Cvanham, Essex, with a view to transporting the body to the United States, says The Daily Mail.

He believes he has more accurately determined the site of the grave than when permission to search for the General's body was refused recently, and he has asked that he be allowed to undertake an excavation. Some of the parishioners have objected, and the question is as yet unsettled.

WALES EATS CORN ON COB.

Prince Dines in Farmhand Fashion on His Alberta Ranch.

CALGARY, Alberta, Sept. 20.—Lord Renfrew, otherwise known as the Prince of Wales, was introduced to another new dish at his noonday meal today when he sat down to a "feed" of corn on the cob at the E. P. Ranch. The Prince ate several ears in regular farmhand fashion.

Lord Renfrew spent the morning in supervising numerous tasks being done on his ranch in preparation for the Winter. At noon it was said he would likely make another short excursion in search of wild duck.

He expressed himself as pleased over the improvement in his property and is making plans that indicate he may be a frequent visitor in the future.

COSGRAVE NAMES NEW IRISH CABINET

He Gives Up Portfolio of Finance, Which Goes to Blythe —Dail Approves Selections.

TO CUT LAW ACTION COSTS

Dublin Report Says That De Valera and Other Republicans Will Be Put on Trial.

DUBLIN, Sept. 20 (Associated Press).—President Cosgrave today placed the make-up of his new Cabinet before the Dail Eireann and received the approval of that body to his selections.

Kevin O'Higgins remains as Minister of Home Affairs and Richard Mulcahy as Minister of Defense, with Professor John MacNeill as Minister of Education and Desmond Fitzgerald as Minister of Foreign Affairs. An important change is the abandonment by President Cosgrave of the portfolio of finance, which he had previously held. To this post he named Ernest Blythe, previously Minister of Local Government.

The only other business was the debate on the fiscal policy of the Government, in which Tom Johnson, the laborite, made strong references to the unemployment question. Mr. Johnson admitted, however, that the electors had shown clearly that they did not desire that the labor party should take the responsibility of criticizing the Government's action.

President Cosgrave then announced that the Governor General would issue a statement of the Government's policy on Oct. 2.

The House passed the first reading of a bill for the establishment of courts of justice in accordance with the new constitution. Mr. Cosgrave explained that the bill had been drafted to meet the country's needs and that obviously there would be some objections to it owing to the fact that actions at law were going to be made somewhat cheaper.

Dan Breen, former Commandant General of the Republican forces, is reported to be having a stormy career in Montjoy Prison, where he is confined. According to Republican headquarters Breen and other prisoners were menaced with machine guns when they refused to move from a wing of the prison and Breen was hit on the head with a piece of pipe when he showed an inclination to resist.

A doctor, who was a fellow prisoner, is alleged to have been fired at when he attempted to assist Breen. The latter now is reported to be on a hunger strike.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Eamon de Valera and some of the other leading Irish Republicans will be brought to tial at an early date, according to a report in Dublin quoted by The Daily Mirror. The newspaper adds that de Valera is being continually removed from one military prison to another in order to avoid the possibility of an attempt at rescue.

MARYLAND DEMOCRATS RENOMINATE RITCHIE

Platform Supporting Governor Advocates Light Beer and Wine.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 20. — Governor Ritchie was renominated to succeed himself by the Demacratic State Convention here today and a platform containing a plank protesting against the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment through the Volstead act rather than through legislation enacted by the various States was adopted.

So long, however, as there is a Federal law enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment, the plank advicates its modification so as to permit light wines and beer in communities where there is no local legislation to the contrary.

State Comptroller W. S. Gordy was renominated and Thomas H. Robinson and James A. Young were nominated candidates for Attorney General and Clerk of the Court of Appeals, respectively.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 20. — Newspapers announce, in a note of semi-official origin, that an engagement has been arranged between Marie José, Princess of Belgium, and Humbert, Crown Prince of Italy. The announcement was to have been made Sept. 15, according to the note, but this was impossible on account of the serious illness of Princesses Mafalda and Giovanna of Italy.

The formal proclamation of the engagement is now set for Nov. 4, which is the Vittorio Veneto anniversary.

Port Authority Presents Proposal for Creation of Two Additional Terminal Yards.

"You are on the wrong line in talking of consolidation of the railroads. What is needed is segregation, as the roads have all the business of their own that they can handle," declared President E. E. Loomis of the Lehigh Valley Railroad yesterday at the hearing of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Port Authority on the Belt Line 13 proposal.

"The harbor here has greater facilities than any I know of," he continued. "It has a water belt line which I believe is much more effective than a railroad belt line. I believe the Port of New York needs more than anything else better vehicular transportation facilities between New York and Jersey City. If the Port Authority could get the State to build a bridge or vehicular tunnel, it would be doing something constructive to relieve the situation."

Mr. Loomis said he was perfectly willing to open his line to any other road that wants to use it. The three Presidents chiefly interested in Line 13 proposed having their local superintendents form an operating committee and appoint an official in charge of the Belt Line to expedite the movement of traffic. Mr. Loomis believed this would be much more satisfactory and would serve the shippers better than independent operation.

Maps and other data were then presented by counsel for the Port Authority. E. L. Cosins, consulting engineer for the Toronto Harbor Commission; John E. Ramsey, chief statistician for the Port Authority, and Billings Wilson of the Port Authority were called to testify on the maps and data. Mr. Ramsey said the proposal would save 8,000 car operations a month, or 100,000 car operations a year, under the plan proposed. This would mean a saving of 78 cents a car.

The session adjourned indefinitely after a modified plan had been presented by the engineering staff of the Port Authority. This proposal would cost $722,600, it was estimated, and calls for two new yards being created, one opposite the Erie Terminal and the other opposite the Claremont yard of the Lehigh Valley.

MASONIC CONVENTION ENDS.

33d Degree Supreme Council Would Keep Out of Politics.

At its concluding executive session yesterday morning at the Hotel Pennsylvania the Supreme Council of the A. O. S. R., thirty-third degree Masons, Northern Jurisdiction, put itself on record as opposing "direct action" or intervention in political or educational affairs on the part of the Masonic bodies. This action was taken in consequence of several inquiries received by Leon M. Abbott, Sovereign Grand Commander of the order, and to make the position of the Masonic bodies clear in this regard.

The rest of the session, which lasted until noon, was devoted to routine business including selection of candidates for initiation to the thirty-third degree in next year's convention. A luncheon on the Pennsylvania roof concluded the official program of the 111th convention of the Supereme Council.

JEWS KEEP YOM KIPPUR.

Spend Day in Fasting and Prayer—Synagogues Overflow.

The synagogues of this city were thronged yesterday for the observance of Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, which was ushered in Wednesday night at sunset, with the chanting of "Kol Nidre." Members of the Jewish faith feasted from that hour until yesterday at sunset, spending the day in prayer. Business in some parts of the city was suspended.

Sermons were preached in all synagogues and in most of them rabbis appealed for the various Jewish causes. An appeal for the support of the campaign conducted by the Jewish Education Association to raise $500,000 was made by Louis Marshall. Mr. Marshall's message was addressed to Israel Unterberg, Honorary Chairman of the campaign. He declared that he considered the problem of Jewish education the most vital need of the comfunity, "more important even than hospitals, orphan asylums, homes for the aged and all other philanthropic institutions."

SEIZE 5,000 STILLS IN YEAR.

300 "Dry" Agents Also Took Possession of 2,000,000 Gallons of Mash

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—In its fight against moonshining the Federal Government seized more than 5,000 stills in the last fiscal year, according to figures made public today by Prohibition Commissioner Haynes. Less than 300 prohibition agents participated in the seizures.

Besides the stills, the agents confiscated 2,000,000 gallons of mash, 50,000 gallons of whisky, 9,000 gallons of pomade, 21,481 fermenters, 90 copper coils and 25 pistols, revolvers and rifles.

HAGUE COURT TO RULE ON LEAGUE'S POWER

in Italy would be seriously affected, and should he fall from power the internal situation in that country might become very critical.

Lord Robert Cecil demanded as a minimum that Signor Salandra should compromise to this extent; that he would approve the decision of the Council that "the questions raised should be settled in order to avoid in future any difference of opinion," and "that the Council should undertake, with the help of legal experts, a studied and thorough examination of these delicate problems, and that it should consider without delay the methods best suited to attain this end."

Salandra Accepts a Compromise.

By agreeing to this Signor Salandra abandoned the position he took on Tuesday, that, the dispute with Greece being settled, the Council should regard the matter as closed. He stipulated, however, that the question should be considered by the Court of International Justice only in the abstract, and that Italy should not be made to appear at the bar.

When the decision of the Council was announced by the Chairman, Viscount Ishii, in the public meeting there was a gasp ofdisappointment, as every one was expecting a public debate. In the course of the day that feeling has been somewhat mitigated by the consideration that there has been no abandonment by the Council of its intention to have the legal situation settled definitely, whatever concessions may have been made to save Mussolini's pride and place.

Dr. Nansen and others are tonight preparing to introduce the question tomorrow before the Assembly, but there is ground for believing that the majority of the Assembly will approve the Council's decision.

Questions to Be Put to Hague Court.

GENEVA, Sept. 20 (Associated Press).—The Jurists who will assist the Council at the forthcoming examination of the covenant will probably formulate a series of questions which will be forwarded to the Permanent Court of International Justice for an advisory opinion. These questions will be founded on the Italian affair and are expected to take the following form:

How far is a State responsible for political crimes committed within its territory?

How far is it justified in seizing territory as a guarantee?

What questions are excluded from the competency of the League under the League Covenant?

Are questions involving national honor and dignity excluded?

The elaboration of a treaty under which the principles of the Washington convention for the reduction of armaments would be accepted by the countries which did not sign that agreement will be studied by the League of Nations. This was decided upon by the League Council today. Naval experts will be asked to collaborate in the investigation with a view to insuring the framing of a convention acceptable to all nations, whether they are members of the League or not.

The close collaboration between the Conference of Ambassadors and the League was again manifested today when the League received a communication from the Paris organization asking its good offices in the settlement of the dispute between Poland and Czechoslovakia concerning the frontier region of Jaworlina. The question will probably be submitted to the Permanent Court of International Justice.

The progress made in the financial reconstruction of Austria has exceeded the expectations of a year ago, in the official opinion of the Council of the League of Natons, which bases its judgment on reports for the three months ended Aug. 15.

These reports say that the economic situation in Austria would have improved still more if the crisis in foreign exchange in neighboring countries had not impeded the conclusion of commercial treaties. It is further stated that the participation of an American bank syndicate in "the first large scale post-war loan conttracted by a Central European State on the international market is interesting and noteworthy."

Major G. W. Stephens of Montreal, Canada, was elected today by the Council of the League of Nations to fill the vacancy on the Sarre Valley Governing Commission caused by the recent resignation of R. D. Waugh of Winnipeg.

LLOYD GEORGE SEES ONLY TROUBLE AHEAD

All the Present Tendencies Are Away From Peace, He Declares in 300-Page Book.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Europe as viewed from outside 10 Downing Street is a sad spectacle indeed and is going from bad to worse, in the eyes of David Lloyd George, who, in a 300-page book entitled "Is It Peace?" to be published on Sept. 28, reviews the whole ambit of the present European problems, the Ruhr predominating, and comments thereon in the vigorous style, replete with sonorous metaphor, which is characteristic of his writings.

The book is an amplification of recent articles by the former British Prime Minister with a preface in which the author says it has not been necessary for him to revise any of the estimates of the various situations he has made from time to time. He is convinced that peace has gone back perceptibly and unmistakably.

Mr. Lloyd George says Europe's patched up peace compacts will leave the Continent in a more precarious plight than ever, but he is still hopeful that the settlements will be left to the diplomatists and not to the "gunmen."

The Ruhr situation particularly receives the ex-Premier's attention. He is confident that the program of his own Government for getting reparations from Germany was the only one possible of fulfillment, and he continues to demand full publicity for the British proposals submitted to the allied conference of August, 1922, which he says were substantially accepted by all the Allies with the exception of France.

Mr. Lloyd George's concluding sentences in the preface of the book are: "Peace can only be restored by full recognition of the equities as well as the humanities—of the humanities as well as the equities. I have sought in these pages to deal fairly with both."

TO REFIT ARGENTINE SHIPS.

American Shipyards Will Get Navy Contracts Voted by Congress.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 20.—The bill for the modernization of the Argentine battleships Rivadavia and Moreño, built in the United States ten years ago, together with four scout ships, was promulgated by the Government today after passage by Congress.

It is expected a commission of naval officers will leave here soon for New York to arrange to have American shipyards do the work on the battleships, and it is probable that the two warships will sail for the United States in February. The scout ships will be repaired in Argentina, but the commission will buy the materials for the work in the United States.

It is reported that the Fore River yards are likely to receive one of the battleship contracts and the New York Shipbuilding Company the other.

DROP 3 HIGH COURT SUITS.

Government Settles Two Lever Act Coal Strike Cases.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—When the first ten cases are called for argument in the Supreme Court after it meets Oct. 1, three of them will be dismissed without a hearing, counsel having agreed on a settlement without awaiting action by the court.

One of the cases came from Illinois, brought by the Indiana and Illinois Coal Corporation and Herman C. Perry, who objected to going to Indiana to answer an indictment for an alleged violation of the Lever act during the war. The Government has agreed to a settlement satisfactory to the other parties to the suit.

Another case to be dropped comes from Mississippi, brought by the Director General of Railroads under the Federal Employers' Liability act.

The third is the case of the Hillsboro Coal Company and Rice Miller, who were charged under the Lever act with restricting production of coal during the war in connection with the strike of the United Mine Workers of America in the central competitive field. The act subsequently was declared unconstitutional.

GOMPERS SEES PRESIDENT.

Presents Legislative Program of Interest to Organized Labor.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—A legislative program of interest to organized labor was presented to President Coolidge today by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Gompers stressed particularly the need for restriction of child labor, and said afterward that the Executive seemed to be in sympathy with such a movement. The Federation President added that before leaving for Portland, Ore., to attend the annual A. F. of L. Convention he would submit some memoranda to the President regarding other legislation.

Clayton, a negro employed as a dental mechanic at the Mount Alto Veterans' Bureau Hospital, was said by the police here today to have confessed that in working on bridgework for former service men he had been putting only half the gold ordered into the bridgework and selling the rest. Government agents say the loss probably will amount to $5,000. Clayton is in jail.

CREDIT MEN PREDICT PROSPEROUS FUTURE

Most Directors of National Association Find Signs Are Optimistic.

WANT EUROPE TO SUBSIDE

Lessening of Political Activity in America Also Held a Need of Trade.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 20.—The majority of the directors of the National Association of Credit Men, meeting here today, believe that American business is entering a period of increasing prosperity, a canvass of the board disclosed.

Every section of the country is represented on the directorate, as well as nearly every line of manufacturing, wholesale trading and banking.

Eighteen of the thirty-one directors reported collections better than a month ago. General business was said by nineteen to be improving, by six to be stationary and by three to be slowing down. The first requisite for clearing the way for real prosperity was given as "settlement of the European turmoil." Other requisites named were less political agitation; a downward revision of taxes; a better attitude on the part of labor; and a revision of the immigration laws.

The board declared that the Federal Reserve System had saved the country from several panics and adopted a resolution urging all commercial banks which could qualify to join it.

Another resolution declared that the present immigration law was unscientific and should be amended so as to provide for a selective process at the point of departure, rather than at the point of entry.

In another resolution, the directors characterized the strike of the New York pressmen as "especially pernicious," noting that the strike is condemned by organized labor itself.

DISCUSS TRADE PROMOTION.

Commerce Department Holds a Conference on Latin America.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Intensive promotion of trade between the United States and South and Central America was the object of a three-day conference, closed today, at the Department of Commerce between department officials and American commercial attachés assigned to various Latin-American countries.

Director Klein of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce presided, and the commercial attachés attending were E. F. Feely, Buenos Aires; W. E. Dunn, Lima; C. A. McQueen, Santiago, and Paul L. Edwards, Havana.

The conference was held in pursuance of Secretary Hoover's desire to devote greater attention to the cultivation of commercial, economic and social relations with the Latin-American republics.

MORE CHILDREN GO TO WORK

Cost of Living in Worcester Hits School Attendance.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 20.—The increased cost of household supplies and a rise in rents have caused an increase of more than 108 per cent. in the requests of school children for work certificates, as compared with last year during the school registration period.

Families with children of bread-winning age have been compelled to deny them the advantages of school, as their aid is needed in keeping the larder and coal bins filled and the landlord satisfied.

UNIVERSITY AID FOR LEAGUE.

Delegates From Many Countries Offer Collaboration at Geneva.

GENEVA, Sept. 20.—Another outlet for the expression of world opinion in support of the League of Nations has been opened here in the initiation of a movement by university groups of many nations for the establishment of an International University Federation.

Delegations representing American, English, French, Bulgarian, Swiss, Czecholslovakian and Yugoslav universities have presented a resolution to President Torriente of the League Assembly which they drew up at a preliminary meeting of the federation.

The resolution says that the organization, "considering that the best guarantee of universal peace lies in respect for law and justice, that the principles of the Covenant of the League offer a firm basis for the collaboration of all peoples, and that it is necessary to win over public opinion to this end especially among the youth of the world, undertakes to do its utmost to start propaganda and to exercise its influence on public opinion, especially in university circles."

SEIZE MS. OF "RIGOLETTO."

Paris Police Act at the Instance of the Heirs of Victor Hugo.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—The original French manuscript of "Rigoletto" has been seized by the police, acting under authority of the French courts.

The legal dispute in connection with which the seizure was made dates back to 1863 when Victor Hugo, then in exile in the Island of Guernsey, vainly protested against the production of "Rigoletto" on the ground that it had been stolen from his own play "Le Roi s'Amuse," and then decided to resort to the French tribunals for satisfaction. The heirs of the poet have kept the case on the court calendar.

it, but, quickly regaining his composure, said: "That's the check."

"And the amount of it is what?" asked Mr. Lindsay.

"Two thousand dollars," replied Thor unhesitatingly, but in a tone implying surprise.

"How did you come to confuse the amount?" persisted Mr. Lindsay.

"It was an honest confusion," Thor flashed.

"You testified positively that the amount was $1,000," interrupted Judge Crain.

"Yes, it was an honest mistake, your Honor," Thor repeated.

Judge Crain and Mr. Pecora then went further into an examination of Thor as to his personal resources. He said that he had two safe deposit boxes—one in the Lincoln Safe Deposit Company and one in the Bankers' Trust Company.

"Did you have any special occasion to rent a safe deposit box three years ago?" asked Mr. Pecora.

Wife Wanted Depository, He Says.

"I did it at the request of my wife," Thor said. "She had some securities she gave to me to put in it."

Thor said that at times he kept cash in the safe deposit boxes. He was asked to explain why he put money in the boxes when he had two bank accounts.

"I didn't do it as a regular thing," was his explanation. "On one or two occasions I had money in my pocket and, being at the vault, I put it in the box. There was no reason for it. I might as well have put it in the bank."

Asked why he thought Dwyer had used his name in connection with the ownership of the liquor, Thor said he thought it was "to establish an alibi."

"Did Jack O'Connor or Shevlin tell you why your name had been used?" Mr. Pecora asked.

"The reason was to make a getaway," Thor replied.

"Aside from your denial, it was important for you to establish the ownership of that liquor, was it not?" Judge Crain asked.

"Yes."

"What steps did you take to do so?"

"I believed the investigation of the Chief Inspector would bring that out," Thor said.

Asked why he did not get Shevlin and Dwyer to go down and tell Lahey who owned the liquor, Thor said he thought they would do so.

Lahey's Report to Enright Found.

A carbon copy of a letter from Chief Inspector Lahey to Commissioner Enright, transmitting a transcript of the inquiry before Lahey into the Petrucci case, was produced by Grant Crabtree, Chief Clerk of the Police Department, at yesterday's session. The latter was dated July 30, 1921. It called the attention of the Commissioner to the transcript attached to it and recommended that the minutes be referred to the First Deputy Commissioner for such action as he might think proper.

Crabtree previously had reported that he could not find a copy of the letter. He declared yesterday that he could not find the original.

"I saw the Police Commissioner," he said, "and asked him for the original of the letter. He said he had no such letter and knew nothing about it."

"From whom did you obtain this copy?" Mr. Lindsay asked.

"The Chief Inspector's office."

"What were the circumstances?"

"I went to the Chief Inspector and told him what the court had asked me to get. He told one of his clerks to give me what I wanted if they had it. The clerk got it from a file."

Record Handed to Leach, He Says.

Crabtree said he had asked Commissioner Enright about a letter supposed to have been written to Deputy Commissioner Leach, turning over the Lahey record. Commissioner Enright told him, he reported, that he "knew nothing about it." Deputy Commissioner Leach said that the record was handed to him," Crabtree testified.

"You have now discovered that there are files in Commissioner Enright's office, haven't you?" asked Mr. Lindsay.

"There are files there, but I don't know what's in them," Crabtree replied.

Crabtree also produced a memorandum which showed that Patrick H. Enright was assigned on Nov. 6, 1920 as a stenographer to the First Deputy Commissioner. Enright, according to previous testimony is the Commissioner's brother.

James J. Lynch, Special Agent of the Treasury Department, was the first witness at the afternoon session. Lynch testified that he had arrested George J. Shevlin and a man named Sweetwood on Aug. 8, 1922 on their arrival on a steamship from Bermuda. Shevlin, he said, had first said he wts James Sullivan, but later admitted that he was Shevlin when a chauffeur's license and a membership card in the Police Honor Legion was found in his possission. Officers of the legion have since testified that the card was a forgery.

O'Connor Calls Transcript Inaccurate.

Inspector O'Connor, recalled, was questioned minutely about his statements when he appeared before Inspector Dahey. "I do not remember saying that," was his comment when section after section of testimony was read to him. "I could not have answered that way," he declared when other parts, showing sharp conflicts between his statements at the Dahey inquiry and his testimony before Judge Crain, were read.

"I call your attention to the fact that this record shows that before Inspector Lahey you mentioned Dwyer twice," said Judge Crain. O'Connor had just testified that he did know Dwyer before the inquiry.

"That is not correct," said O'Connor.

"Do you challenge the accuracy of this transcript?" asked Mr. Pecora.

"I do," said O'Connor. "I do not think the transcript is correct in many respects."

"Have you any reason to think that any one tampered with the testimony at headquarters?"

"No, but I know a lot of stenographers who can't read their notes."

Mistakes in "Yes" and "No" Answers.

"Some of the answers which you repudiate are: "Yes' and "No." Do you think a stenographer would make a mistake in those words?"

"I know that the record is not correct."

Inspector O'Brien, named with Thor and O'Connor as the owners of the liquor, declared that he did not know that his name had been mentioned until after the Lahey inquiry. Neither Inspecton Thor nor Captain O'Connor had mentioned the use of his name to him, he said, and on his appearance before Inspector Lahey he had been questioned only as to whether he knew certain individuals.

"I left the Chief Inspector's office with the impression that he did not think I had anything to do with it," said Inspector O'Brien. "At no time had I understood that my name had been used, unless I thought perhaps that some one because of a predicament he was in had said he knew Inspector O'Brien."

Inspector O'Brien's examination was cut short by adjournment. The inquiry will be resumed Monday morning at [illegible]:30.

SEEKS LEGISLATION ON HARD COAL COSTS

Massachusetts Representative Asks Coolidge to Call Session of Congress.

FEARS RISE TO CONSUMER

Meanwhile a Shortage of Labor Continues at the Anthracite Mines.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20. — President Coolidge was urged today by Representative Treadway, Republican of Massachusetts, to call an extra session of Congress to deal with the anthracite situation. Mr. Treadway declined to say whether the president indicated any change in his previous position that there is no necessity for an extra session.

Mr. Treadway declared that if Congress were called together to consider measures of relief for the agricultural industry of the West, coal legislation undoubtedly would be considered. He said there was no threat of a shortage of fuel in New England but that the price situation threatened to be a serious one.

The Federal Trade commission expects by next week to announce its plan of action to carry out the request of President Coolidge that it hold coal prices to a reasonable level under the new anthracite agreement.

Publication of information as to the cost of transporting and marketing coal is expected to be one of the chief weapons of the commission. Data of the Coal Commission, which expires by limitation day after tomorrow, will be available to the Federal trade body and it also plans to secure current information for frequent publication. The work of collecting information on coal costs, however, will be done under the handicap of an injunction which prevents the trade commission fror requiring coal operators to produce their books and show the actual cost of mining coal. This injunction was secured against the commission in the Federal courts here two years ago by Maynard & Co. of West Virginia on the ground that coal mining was an intrastate function and not within the commission's jurisdiction. An appeal has been taken from the injunction, but pending a final decision, the commission's hands are tied as to obtaining actual facts as to mining costs.

Interstate transportation and distribution of coal are regarded as clearly within the purview of the commission. It also has power under the Federal Trade Commission act to prohibit unfair methods of competition or trade practices inimical to the public interests. Complaints may be filed under these sections of the law.

HAZLETON, Pa., Sept. 20.—Shortage of labor continued today at the anthracite mines in the Hazleton district despite the lifting of the suspension by the United Mine Workers following the agreement with the coal operators on a new wage contract.

Production at the 37 collieries on the Hazleton and Mahanoy Division of the Lehigh Valley Railroad yesterday, was about 40 per cent. of normal.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 20.—Rinaldo Cappellini, President of the United Mine Workers in the Scranton-Wilkesbarre district, issued a statement today warning coal companies not to violate the spirit of the eight-hour section of the new agreement. Cappellini declared that some coal companis in the district have made a change in the working hours of repairmen, ordering them to work from 9 A. M. to 5:30 P. M. He has upheld a protest by the repairmen, who desire to have their hours fixed from 7 A. M. to 3:30 P. M.

ASK FOR A RECEIVER.

Boston Stockholders Sue Officers of Securities Corporation.

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—A bill in equity brought in Suffolk County Superior Court today by four stockholders asks the appointment of a receiver for the Guaranty Securities Corporation, a $10,000,000 company, and asks the court to enjoin Putnam G. Roper of Boston, the President; Robert S. Burns of Medford, Treasurer, and Chester G. Clark of Wellesley from acting as officers and directors.

Allegations that the defendants have defrauded the corporation by causing it to buy a large number of shares of its own outstanding preferred stock at prices in excess of the fair market value are made by the petitioners, Clifton C. Goodwin, John J. Sullivan, Margaret A. Whalen, Mary A. Sullivan and William Kirby.

The petitioners further allege that the purchases were made at times when they were not for the advantage of the corporation, and that, acting in concert, the defendants bought the stock to sell it to the corporation at a large profit.

The corporation was organized in 1919 to do a general brokerage, financial and promoting business. The stock of the company consists of 700,000 shares of 8 per cent. cumulative preferred and 300,000 shares of common stock, it is stated. The latter is voting stock and, it is said, the defendants control 51 per cent. of it as trustees under a voting trust.

The case is set for hearing next week.

Trip to Grave of Unknown Soldier Will Be Made Today.

Special to The New York Times.

Newspaper men, under the guidance of Commander Weyerbacker, builder of the ZR-1, inspected the interior of the dirigible and saw how the Leviathan of the air was operated.

DR. HOPKINS ASSAILS EXTREMIST TACTICS

Dartmouth President in College Opening Address Sees Liberalism Exploited.

TRUTH EDUCATION'S GOAL

Tells 2,000 Students Mental Discrimination Is Aim in Present Era of Distrust.

HANOVER, N. H., Sept. 20.—The problem "which more than any other requires solution in these days of unrest and uncertainty" is "how to preserve to the needs of civilization the initiative and vigor and originality of individualism in conjunction with the responsibilities and necessities of associationalism," said President Ernest Martin Hopkins in his address to the student body upon the opening of Dartmouth College today.

Dr. Hopkins took occasion to criticize "extremists who style themselves 'liberal' with a capital 'L'."

"The goal of education," said President Hopkins, "is cultivation and development of our mental powers to the end that we may know truth and conform to it."

Commenting on how many in the assembly before him had ever made "a conscious and deliberate attempt to have a thought," Dr. Hopkins granted the holding of opinions, but questioned to what extent these were the product of thought. Craving for authority for opinions, seeking an education, he said, led to his definition of the goal of education as the search for and conformity to the truth.

Contrasts Education and Training.

Turning to the difference between education and training, Dr. Hopkins said:

"The method of the educational institution calls for diversity in points of view and emphasis upon stimulating the student's thought, while the training school almost inevitably emphasizes instruction and demands conformity to the thought of others.

"I believe that here may be question in regard to the contention of those who hold that an endowed institution has no right to be a training school, and I see no reason why there should not be labor colleges and colleges for the defense of capitalism, or schools of democracy and schools for the justification of benevolent despotisms, or schools with the purpose of striving for the establishment of the validity of one denominational contention or another in theological belief. But it is requisite that such an institution should not take exception to the classification of itself as a training school, and not primarily as an educational institution.

"It behooves the institution which boasts itself an educational institution to make good its claim, to avoid the spirit as well as the method of the training school, and to be in fact as well as in name truly educational."

Analyzing world conditions in which this educational ideal is sought, Dr. Hopkins continued:

"We formerly accentuated the presence among men of happiness and contentment and confidence; now we ruminate with melancholy gratification upon unhappiness and discontent and distrust. Self-depreciation and disavowal of existent elements of altruism and nobility within ourselves are habitual not only with ourselves individually but likewise with ourselves collectively.

Assails Exploiters of Liberalism.

"It is not difficult to understand the wide prevalence of the professionalized attitude toward life * * * the constant effort necessary to maintain leadership. Even if once acquired within a given field, it largely denies the possibility of acquiring that acquaintanceship with the activities and needs of other groups which shall make for breadth of knowledge or for sympathetic understanding of the baffling problems which others face.

"These tendencies * * * become intolerable handicaps to progress when they become attributes to schools of thought having to do with social theory and the search for a valid philosophy of life.

"We have definite and disturbing illustration of this at the present time in the attempt of extremists who style themselves 'liberal,' with a capital 'l,' to exploit in their own interest the field of liberal thought. This professionalized group, arrogating to itself all virtue and good intent and denying these qualities to all others, patronizing those who will not whittle their conclusions to the exact dimensions of the prescribed code, manipulating intellectual processes and capitalizing dogmatic assertion as preferable to accepting the conclusions of logical thought—this group is doing more to breed suspicion of and hostility to true liberalism than is being done or could be done by all available forms of reaction if combined in militant array.

"Ill-nature, intellectual arrogance and churlish intolerance are but sorry concomitants of any movement, but they are singularly out of place and tragically harmful in association with any movement which desires to be recognized as liberal. The mind tolerant of the opinions of others and open to conviction in the presence of new knowledge is more liberal than that of the bigot, regardless of the beliefs of either.

"The individual who does not will to be a slacker must hold his own actions and his own purposes as of vital significance to the social state, and must accept at least his proportional obligation for the influence upon society which he shall exert.

Urges New Codes of Action.

"Herein we approach from one angle the problem which more than any other requires solution in these days of unrest and uncertainty; how to preserve to the needs of civilization the initiative and vigor and originality of individualism in conjunction with the responsibilities and necessities of associationalism.

"Truth cannot be found by men unwilling to weigh the merits of any opinion but their own. Reality cannot be known by men who will accept no data except those conducive to their ends. Intellectual power cannot emanate from minds unused to thought. Yet mental discrimination, mental honesty, and mental power are all indispensable to him who would be largely useful in such a time as this."

In the opening of its 155th year today, the college showed an enrolment approximately at the 2,000 limit set by the selective process. SIMS URGES INITIATIVE ON WESLEYAN MEN

Pays Tribute to Roosevelt for Inculcating This Trait in the Naval Service.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Sept. 20.—Admiral William S. Sims of the navy spoke to the Wesleyan University undergraduates at the matriculation day exercises today, extolling initiative as one of the most important traits which young men could acquire. Nobody, he said, could develop another's mind; one must do it himself. Knowledge, applied with initiative, might become a great force for good or evil. Knowledge ill-applied was a danger to the State and was illustrated in some of the political activities of the present day.

The Admiral told something of his own life. In his school days, he said, physical punishment was uppermost in the system of education. The slightest infraction of the rules drew down the wrath of a teacher in the grade schools, and under the system it was impossible to develop initiative. It was the same way when he entered the Naval Academy. There a "plebe" was not taught to think for himself, but to obey orders strictly. The regulations of the Academy were voluminous and had to be obeyed. In the naval service itself discipline was enforced by fear and punishment. It was not until recently that the importance of individual initiative was brought out and a new order of things introduced.

The Admiral paid tribute to Theodore Roosevelt for being highly instrumental in developing the present efficiency of the navy. It was through his influence, he said, that military men came to believe that individual independence was as important as training and knowledge. Men who used their brains got a chance, and with the enlargement of the navy, with its stations scattered all over the world, this change was proved to be a wise one.

It was the same, he said, in peaceful industry. There initiative was the key word; it was a quality for which there was a wide search today. Without it, there was only failure ahead.

Wesleyan starts the college year with a freshman enrollment of 108 and a total membership of the student body of more than 500.

FRESHMAN BRIDEGROOM WILL REMAIN AT YALE

University Decides Not to Break Up Honeymoon of W. J. Scripps, Detroit Publisher's Son.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 20.—Arrangements have been made, it was said here today, whereby William John Scripps, 18-year-old son of William E. Scripps, Detroit millionaire, may maintain a honeymoon establishment in New Haven with his 18-year-old bride, Virginia Stanley Scripps, while he continues his studies at Yale.

The arrangements were completed when a professor from Yale spent the day at the Scripps home here, investigating the scholastic qualifications of the publisher's son. Prior to that young Mr. and Mrs. Scripps feared they would have to be parted until such time as Scripps should graduate from college.

Mrs. Scripps was to have returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Stanley, in Brookline, Mass., and he was to have visited her occasionally, as his courses at New Haven permitted.

The professor who spent the day here is said to have agreed that there would be no objection to young Scripps and his bride taking a house in New Haven so long as his college work kept up to the mark. The youthful husband will go East immediately, it is understood, and help his bride pick out a home in New Haven.

The couple were married secretly in Sandwich, Ontario, three weeks ago.

"Jimmie" Scripps, a brother of the young bridegroom, also was married a couple of years ago, when still a student in the Roxbury Tutoring School at New Haven, where he was preparing for entrance to college.

EXPEL 4,000 FROM FIUME.

Italian Military Governor Thus Saves Doles to Unemployed.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—General Gaetano Giardino, Military Governor of Fiume, has expelled 4,000 unemployed from Fiume so as to save the large sums the Government has been spending on doles, according to a dispatch to the Central News from Rome.

Those expelled were not citizens of Fiume.

BELGRADE, Sept. 20.—The Yogoslav Cabinet, after considering every phase of the Fiume situation, has decided to defer action until it receives from Premier Mussolini detailed proposals which are to furnish a basis for actual negotiations.

Thus the Fiume incident apparently has been definitely removed from the acute phase that endangered a peaceful settlement of the controversy.

PLANS 'SHORT' FRANC POOL.

Broker Promises Customers 550 Per Cent. Profit in Franc's Fall.

P. J. Fuller, stock broker, Fifth Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, in a letter marked "confidential" addressed to "Germans," is promising Germans in America nearly 100 per cent. if the French franc falls from its present price of 5½ cents to three cents. In the letter he says speculators who sell the franc "short" will be able to buy francs later at 1 cent each, which, if they accept Fuller's proposition, will give them a paper profit of 550 per cent.

Fuller's letter is headed "Morgan, Harwood & Co., Inc., Guaranty Trust Building." Fuller bought out Harwood & Morgan a year ago and is now sole proprietor of the concern.

"Something must be done to bring the French to their knees," he said. "I am, therefore, forming a pool, the participants in which will deliver a blow to French domination."

Asked what would happen if the franc rose, Fuller said that naturally in that case his co-operators would lose their money.

MAYOR HYLAN PLANS TO COME HOME SOON

Vetoes the Suggestion That He Go to Atlantic City for His Convalescence.

HOPES TO MOVE NEXT WEEK

Learns for the First Time He Had Double Pneumonia—Improvement Keeps Up.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 20.—In a discussion with John F. Sinnott, his son-in-law, and Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, Health Commissioner of New York City, Mayor John F. Hylan today vetoed the suggestion that he go to Atlantic City for his convalescence and made plans for his return to Brooklyn.

If the Mayor continues to improve as he has in the last few days, he will return to Brooklyn the latter part of next week. He told Mr. Sinnott and Dr. Monaghan that he realized he would be in no condition to walk and proposed that a private car be engaged and that he be taken to this car in an ambulance from Saratoga Hospital. He suggested that the car be switched from a New York Central train at Mott Haven Junction and taken over the Hell Gate Bridge to the Long Island Railroad and stopped at Cooper Avenue, which is about two miles from the Mayor's home.

Dr. Monaghan said the Mayor's plan would probably be carried out, as the Mayor was anxious to leave Saratoga and get back home.

"The Mayor is out of danger now, at least so far as the pneumonic danger is concerned," Dr. Monaghan said. "There is little danger of a relapse and I think he can be removed in a week."

Dr. Monaghan added that the Mayor learned for the first time how seriously ill he had been and was greatly surprised to be told that he had double pneumonia.

The bulletin issued at 11 A. M. showed that the Mayor's temperature was normal. It read:

"Mayor John F. Hylan continues to convalesce and feels better this morning than at any time since his illness began. Temperature 98.3, pulse 85, respiration 24.

"GEORGE F. COMSTOCK, M. D.
"FRANK J. MONAGHAN, M. D.
"CARL R. COMSTOCK, M. D."

Dr. Monaghan said that he would return to New York tomorrow if the Mayor continued to improve, but would come back to accompany the Mayor to Brooklyn.

PINCHOT TAKES ACTION IN JOHNSTOWN OUSTER

He Assures Mexican Embassy Full Power of State Will Be Used to Safeguard Rights.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—A telegram from Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, giving assurances that "the whole power of this commonwealth will be used if necessary to maintain constitutional rights," was received today at the Mexican Embassy, following the Embassy's note to the State Department calling attention to the order of the Mayor of Johnstown, Pa., for all Mexicans and negroes to leave the city. The Mexican note, it was said at the Department, had been forwarded to Governor Pinchot.

Governor Pinchot's note, which was forwarded through the Mexican Consul at Philadelphia, reads as follows:

"Your telegram received. On return to Milford wired Mayor Cauffiel asking him for full statement of facts and reason for action taken. The whole power of this commonwealth will be used if necessary to maintain constitutional rights."

JOHNTOWN, Pa., Sept. 20.—Although declaring that "about 2,000 negroes have gone within the last three weeks," Mayor Joseph Cauffiel denied that he issutd a formal order to deport all negroes not residents of the city for at least seven years. The Mayor insisted his statement in a newspaper interview which said, "For their own safety, I am ordering all newly arrived negro citizens to leave town," was not a formal order.

He had "advised" Mexicans to leave town, too, the Mayor said, because he feared they might be mistaken for negroes if the people of the city should "wreak vengeance" on the negroes for the killing of three police officers by a drink crazed negro recently.

Periodic searches are being made of negroes for weapons by the police and sale and display of firearms has been forbidden, the Mayor said, but police are not being used to compel negroes to quit Johnstown. Pennsylvania railroad officials declared the negro exodus is no greater than usual at this season and place the number who have left since Mayor Cauffiel's newspaper interview at not more than several hundred.

AGAIN ACCUSES STOKES.

Wife Suing Him for Chicago Divorce Appeals to Prosecutor.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—In a counter-attack against her millionaire husband, W. E. D. Stokes, whose suit for divorce she recently defeated, Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes today demanded the aid of the State's Attorney's office against what she termed a conspiracy to ruin her reputation.

She declared that Stokes had spent thousands of dollars in Chicago for perjured affidavits, one set of which attempted to establish her identity as an inmate of a resort. Charles S. Wharton, State's Attorney, issued twenty subpoenas for immediate service and prepared to examine another score acquainted with conditions in the near south side.

BEACH HAVEN, N. J., Sept. 20.—The condition of Maurice Francis Egan, former Minister to Denmark, who has been dangerously ill with kidney disease at his Summer home, Gables-by-the-Sea, in this village, remains unchanged, it was said by attending physicians tonight. Physicians have been in constant attendance for the last thirteen days at Mr. Egan's bedside.

SEES 1924 VICTORY SURE FOR DEMOCRATS

Senator Harrison Bases Prediction on Tour of Country, Save for New England.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Democratic prospects for 1924 were never better than at the present time, said Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, who returned to Washington today after a tour that covered every section of the country except New England. The agricultural situation, the Mississippian asserted, was very serious in the wheat country, while torrential rains had added to the troubles of the cotton planters.

"I don't see how the Democratic Party can lose next year," said Senator Harrison, "and when I say this I base my assertion on what I found out during my tour. Personally, I am in favor of an extra session of Congress so that we may lose no time in trying to find some way to lessen the burdens of the farmers. It's all rot to say we can't do anything. For one thing, we can lower the tariff on the things the farmer must have and we can take the tariff off wheat and other farm products, for the so-called agricultural rates have failed to help the farmer in any way whatever.

"Again, we can help him by adopting a real foreign policy, a policy which will make it possible for us to help stabilize Europe, and in that way hasten the return to normal trade conditions. Ratification of the World Court protocol would help, too, for it would be an indication at least of our interest in affairs on the other side of the ocean. Lastly, we could reduce freight rates and that, in the opinion of every farmer with whom I have talked, would certainly operate to the benefit of the farmers in every section of the country."

As to possible Democratic candidates in 1924 Senator Harrison said there were half a dozen who could win. The situation now is a free-for-all race in his view.

Senator Harrison called on President Coolidge this morning and was with him for some time.

"The President," he said, "is in fine fettle, and he is a fine fellow. We just taked about things in general and not once was politics even hinted at. The President, who has a fine sense of humor, remarked that the most familiar thing about me was my voice."

BANS 'HICK' FARMER IN MOVING PICTURES

Farm Bureau Federation Wants Him Portrayed as Up-to-Date Business Man.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—The "hick" farmer with hayseed in his whiskers and trousers tucked in his boots, caricatured in the movies and on the stage, will be relegated to the same shelf with the dodo bird, if plans approved here today at the publicity convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation are successful.

Movies on Broadway and on State Street will drop the ancient farmer type and in his place present on the silver screen the modern farmer, a type of business man with a capital of from $25,000 to $100,000, an owner of automobiles and the latest farm machinery.

The blame for the old "Yankee farmer" type being carried in the minds of the majority of America's city dwellers was laid at the door of the movie producers by Samuel Guard, director of publicity of the federation.

The movies now will be used to correct impressions of American farms and farmers, according to plans of the convention.

'GRUB STREET' AT YALE RUN BY THE UNIVERSITY

Woman Manager Is Borrowed From Chicago University in Effort to Achieve Success.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 20.—"Grub Street" on the Yale Campus will lead to a rearranged restaurant for freshmen and a new cafeteria for upperclassmen in University Hall, familiarly known as Commons, which this year will be operated by the University itself under the supervision of the Department of University Health. Previous experiments in private management of the Commons have failed, but now the dining halls will be under the personal direction and management of Miss Cora C. Colburn, for many years Director of the Commons of the University of Chicago, who has obtained leave of absence to come to New Haven to make the Yale dining halls as efficient and successful as those at Chicago, where between 4,000 and 5,000 meals are served each day.

The University Cafeteria for upperclassmen and for men students in the graduate and professional schools has been newly equipped throughout. It has been designed to furnish the best of food, with self service, in a building where the sanitary condition of the kitchens, serving rooms, &c., as well as the inspection of all food supplies will be under the constant supervision and control of the Department of University Health. The cafeteria will not be open to members of the freshman year except on Sundays, or when introduced as guests of upperclassmen.

The restaurant for freshmen, located in the west end of University Hall, is but a short distance from the dormitories occupied by the members of the freshman class.

All members of the freshman year are required to eat together on week-days in the restaurant for freshmen, with the exception in certain cases of self-supporting students and of others living at home, who may be exempt by the Registrar of the freshman year. On Sundays, however, when this restaurant is closed, freshmen will be allowed, if they desire, to patronize the adjoining University Cafeteria for upperclassmen, which is not open to them at other times unless they are accompanied by upperclassmen who introduce them as their guests.

The University assures parents and guardians that boys entering Yale will have wholesome food, carefully selected and prepared, in attractive surroundings. With the coming of Miss Colburn the officers of the University are confident that members of the freshman class will enjoy the best obtainable food and service.

In the restaurant freshmen will be permitted to organize club tables of eight, ten or twelve men, which will be reserved at each meal for the use of students requesting such reservations. Club tables where one may eat every day with the same men promote friendships and add much to the enjoyment of university life.

JOHNSONSAYS LEAGUE WAS 'SHOT UP' AT CORFU

Tells His Sacramento Admirers 'Italian Cannon Dramatically Demonstrated' Its Futility.

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 20.—Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California, speaking on the League of Nations at a luncheon here today, declared that "when Mussolini bombarded Corfu he shot up the moribund League of Nations. The Italian cannon dramatically demonstrated to the world what was before known, what had many times been proven, but what internationalists failed to understand or wilfully refused to recognize."

The Senator was introduced at the luncheon as a "favorite son Californians deem worthy to be President."

Since the establishment of the League, Senator Johnson continnued, "eight member States have resorted to arms in violation of the Covenant, and in no instance has any attempt been made to penalize the offenders."

The senator asserted that Lord Robert Cecil was urging the adoption of "a new provision of the Covenant by which force, that is, soldiers, could be requisitioned in different zones to compel obedience to the League's mandates."

"I cannot repeat too often", continued the Senator, "that this so-called court is not a court at all. It can act, as its chief spokesman, Lord Cecil says, only when it is asked to do so by the nations in dispute. The great nations, England, France, Italy and Japan, have practically declined to submit to its compulsory jurisdiction".

ESTATE YIELDS $93,418.

Widow of George A. Wheelock Gets $28,000 From Rents.

Leonard M. Wallstein, as temporary administrator, applied yesterday to the Surrogates' Court for permission to file a judicial settlement of the estate of George A. Wheelock, who died on Nov. 11, 1922, at his home, 33 Park Avenue.

Under the will, the entire estate passed to Mrs. Julia E. Wheelock, the widow, to the exclusion of William Addison Wheelock, a brother, and Mary Elizabeth Griffith, a sister. The brother and sister contested probate, alleging the decedent was of unsound mind. A jury sustained the will.

The administrator's report showed that since he took charge of the estate he received $93,418. After payment of expenses, he turned $28,000 over to Mrs. Wheelock, who is the executor. This money represented rents from the premises 151 to 163 West Twenty-sixth Street, the largest asset of the estate.

'GREENWICH FOLLIES' ANEW

Revue at Winter Garden Is Beautiful and Fairly Amusing.

THE GREENWICH VILLAGE FOLLIES. A revue in two acts and twenty-two scenes. Lyrics by Irving Caesar and John M. Anderson; music by Louis A. Hirsch and Con Conrad. At the Winter Garden.

Principals: Daphne Pollard, Joe E. Brown, Marion Green, the Four Cansinos, Eva Puck, Sammy White, William and Joe Mandell, Denman Maley, Al Sexton, Tom Howard, Wells, Virginia and West, Joe Lyons, Irene Delroy, Martha Graham, Marian Dabney.

"The Greenwich Village Follies" is annually a distinctive revue that manages to set itself just a bit apart from the other and frequently even more lavish serial entertainments, and in this respect the new edition that came to the Winter Garden last night is no exception. As usual John Murray Anderson has contributed a number of hauntingly beautiful scenes, and there has been little or no concession to Winter Garden traditions. To be sure, the new revue is still in the process of evolution—last night's performance was of terrific length.

Mr. Anderson gains his best effects with simple expedients—when he overcrowds the stage, as in the case of his "Garden of Kama," the results are not so good. The Kama episode is one of those legend affairs, performed to a recitative accompaniment, and it is just about as dull a ten minutes as anybody could ask for. But in "The Barcarole," a little later, Mr. Anderson redeemed himself gorgeously—here is a dream episode which is simplicity itself, and accordingly beautiful.

From the standpoint of comedy the new revue is moderately well fitted out. There is a hilarious episode aboard a raft—dealing with the serious business of starving to death, it is true, but comic, nevertheless, and there is Tom Howard, late comedian for the Brothers Minsky and their burlesque show. His best scene, incidentally, once did service on the burlesque stage. Denman Maley is another comedian who does good work throughout the evening.

The baritone voice of Marion Green resounds from time to time, and Daphne Pollard is back from a long stay in London to sing several characteristic songs characteristically. She is highly amusing, but should never be entrusted with the sedate number entitled "Bustles" that falls to her lot. The Cansinos dance with all their accustomed skill; the chorus is large, beautiful and generally underdressed. In brief, it is "The Greenwich Village Follies."

"Traviata" Sung at the Century.

An audience which filled all of the seats of the Century Theatre last evening applauded enthusiastically the San Carlo Opera Company's presentation of Verdi's "La Traviata" with Consuelo Escobar as Violetta, Mario Basiola as the elder Germont and Adamo Chiappini as Alfredo. Andreas Pavley, assisted by Mmes. Milar and Shermont and the ballet, provided the incidental dancing.

FIX LITERACY TEST RULES.

Regents Adopt Rules for Examinations for New Voters.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 20.—The State Board of Regents today adopted rules and regulations for carrying out the new literacy requirement for voters. The election law of 1923 places sole authority on the Board for the issuance of certificates of literacy showing that a new voter is able to read and write English in schools throughout the State to those who are able to pass an examination in reading and writing. There are about a hundred words in simple English, followed by a series of from eight to ten questions which are to be answered by the candidate in his own handwriting.

The Board ruled today that in communities where personal registration is required examinations shall be held during the two weeks preceding the last day of registration. In communities where personal registration is not required examinations will be held two weeks before election day.

All new voters, according to the law, must present evidence of literacy, consisting of a diploma or certificate of graduation from an eighth-grade elementary school or of a higher school in which English is the language of instruction, or a certificate of literacy granted by the school officials. Such evidence must be presented on registration in places where personal registration is required and on election day in places where personal registration is not required.

The law defines a new voter as a person, whether native or foreign born, who has become qualified to vote since Jan. 1, 1922, and has not already voted at a general election in the State. It is estimated that there are annually about 200,000 new voters.

SEES MORE PROSPERITY.

Mellon Thinks the Lull in Some Lines Is Only Seasonal.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Despite lulls that have become manifest in some lines of industry in the last few weeks, Secretary Mellon sees no reason to believe that the wave of business prosperity will be slackened more than temporarily.

The Secretary declared today that seasonal and temporary reductions in business activities are to be expected in all lines, and that such conditions will continue to show on the business horizon in the future. But he said that he did not regard them as serious, or as indicative of a permanent slackening in commerce and industry.

ALL JAPAN'S REFUGEES ARE NOW UNDER COVER

Housed in Barracks in the Parks—Five Tokio Newspapers Resume.

TOKIO, Sept. 20 (Associated Press).—Five Tokio newspapers have resumed publication, operating with full staffs. Means of communication are gradually improving.

All refugees from the earthquake now are housed in temporary barracks built in the parks. Hospitals have been established throughout the city to care for the injured and sick. More than $5,000,000 for relief has been received from abroad.

Admiral E. A. Anderson, commander of the Asiatic Fleet, paid farewell visits today to Premier Yamamoto and other officials. The merican warships, having ended their mission of mercy, will sail on Sunday.

Premier Yamamoto has dispatched a letter to Secretary Hughes through Ambassador Woods, formalyy thanking the American Government for the aid extended to Japanese earthquake suffers.

With Government aassistance life insurance companies say they will begin paying claims in a few days. Fire insuranace companies also are expected to pay a substantial portion of their loosses, as the Government has decided tto subsidize them.

It is understood the Government now proposes to abolish the word limit in press dspatches to and from Japan, which has hitherto prevented much information from reaching the public abroad, and it is expected the privilege of using codes will be re-established.

Baron Nikokichi Ijuin, Governor General of Kwagtung, Manchuria, has accepted the post of Foreign Minister.

Upon his installattion Baron Ijuin said:

"It is the most ardent desire of the Government and the people of Japan to repay the kindness shown by our foreign friends, especially during the earthquake, and to act with a firmer determination thaan ever for co-operation with the powers in the promotion of world peace and the development of international welfare."

MOSCOW HEARS JAPAN DISLIKES OUR RELIEF

Declares Population "Eagerly Awaits" Russian Aid, Though Tokio Government Rejects It.

MOSCOW, Sept. 20.—A Vladivostok dispatch to the Izvestia, official organ of the Soviet Government, says the Lenin, the first Russian relief steamer sent to the aid of the Japanese earthquake sufferers, was expelled from Yokohama Harbor by the Japaness authorities, whoalso declined to permit any of the Soviet relief workers to land.

The Lenin, returning to Vladivostok, reported that she had been escorted to sea by warships. The Russian ship was saluted by American warcraft at Yokohama, but the Japanese withheld any such recognition, says the dispatch. Another Russian ship was forbidden to enter Kobe.

The correspondent declares the Japanese population is eagerly awaiting relief from Russia, while their attitude toward the American relief is "unfriendly."

The Japanese Consul at Vladivostok has been informed that the Tokio Government, while accepting Russian aid funds, is unable to permit the Russian Aid Commission to enter Japan.

The Workmen's Gazette, in explaining the exclusion of the Lenin, says the Tokio Government was told from some source that the vessel carried fifteen tons of Communistic propaganda literature.

The Soviet Government has appropriated 200,000 gold rubles to the aid fund.

2 CAUGHT AFTER ASSAULT.

Arrested in Chase as Attackers of Couple in Central Park.

Two men accused of being members of the gang of six who assaulted George Volland of 43 North Henry Street, Brooklyn, and his 19-year-old fiancée, Margaret Lachmann, of 86 West 119th Street, in Central Park late on Wednesday night, were arrested yesterday and brought before Magistrate A. Sweetser in Yorkville Court. They were charged with felonious assault and statutory offenses against the girl, and held in $5,000 bail each for examination on Saturday.

Edward Hallett, a laborer, of 116 West 100th Street, and Alfred Haskness, a chauffeur, of 104 La Salle Street, aHrlem, were caught by detectives early yesterday morning after a chase through the park during which the pursuers fired thirty shots. They found the men in the bushes, while Miss Lachmann lay unconscious a few feet away. Haskness was arrested in the cellar of an apartment house at 402 Central Park West and Hallett in 104th Street.

The girl is in a critical condition and Volland, who was stabbed seven times by a penknife, is in Reconstruction Hospital, expected to die.

Volland came from Germany six months ago, while his fiancée had been here only a fortnight. They were planning to marry soon.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday, 5¼@5½% for the best names.
Wednesday, 5¼@5½% for the best names.
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Trading Resumed at Yokohama.

Raw silk trading has been resumed at Yokohama, according to advices from Tokio received here yesterday. The opening quotations covered small lots on old contracts and were equivalent to $8.53 a pound for "Double Extra Cracks" and $8.13 a pound for Kansai No. 1. These figures are considerably below the local spot market, which rules around $11.25 for the same grades. The Canton and Shanghai markets have quieted down, and holders are more anxious to do business. The 14-16 new-style reeling is quoted nominally at $9.80 a pound and best quality steam filatures at $11.30.

Gray Goods Have Fair Day.

Gray goods had a fairly active day here yesterday, with most of the buying confined to the print cloths. Sales included a few near-by lots of Southern 38½-inch 60-48s at 9¼ cents and 27-inch 64-60s at 7⅝ cents. Quotations in the general market were based firmly on 12 to 12¼ cents for 39-inch 68-72s and 10¼ cents for 38½-inch 64-60s. Sheetings sales included 36-inch 56-60s at 12¾ cents and 36-inch 5.50s at 9¼ cents. For 72-80 pajama checks 12½ cents was asked.

More Gingham Prices Made.

Spring prices that showed no change from those effective for Fall were issued to the trade yesterday by Amory, Browne & Co. They were based on 22½ cents for Kalburnie ginghams, 23½ cents for "LMC" seersuckers, and 25 cents for Toile du Nord ginghams and Imperial chambrays. Delivery runs from December through March, but shipments on new orders can be made only from January to April. The greater part of the Spring production was sold tentatively before the new prices were issued, and orders are new being confirmed at those levels.

ANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Decline Again, After Early Strength—Foreign Exchange Moves Irregularly.

The stock market again cut the figure yesterday of a football of professional speculators; prices being driven down in much the same way as they had been driven up the day before. There was an early and temporary show of strength, then a brief spell of uncertainty, and at the last a concerted attack on the industrial shares, under which numerous stocks lost a point or thereabout for the day, with a few declines even larger. The railway shares for the most part held reasonably steady.

This alternating downward movement had no connection with the news, which was not unfavorable. Foreign exchange rates moved uncertainly, the single change of any consequence being a recovery in the mark whereby the dollar, which commanded 161,000,000 marks at the close of business Wednesday, brought only 102,000,000 when it ended yesterday. It is easy to understand how the German shops, as described in the cables, nowadays chalk up their hourly change of prices on boards and slates for the benefit of the consuming public.

Reason enough for the easier money market of the present week was presented in the weekly Federal Reserve return. Rediscounted bills decreased $67,000,000, note circulation $7,500,000 and member banks' reserve credits $47,500,000. The system's reserve ratio rose more than 1 per cent. to 77¼, the highest of the month. It is now, in fact, with the Autumn requirements already being prepared for, only 1 per cent. below the highest of the year.

Yesterday's weekly statement by the German Reichsbank was interesting in several ways. As was expected, it showed the paper currency to have passed the quadrillion point in the first week of September; the week's actual increase having been 518 trillion marks, or greater by one-third than the unprecedented inflation of the week preceding. On the other hand the Reichsbank's discounts (chiefly of Treasury bills), which had increased the week before in the enormous sum of 480 trillion marks, expanded only 58 trillions in the current statement. Presumably this means that demands for currency and credit were exceptionally great at the close of August and that some of the loans were repaid the ensuing week. Whether the reported rise in the rediscount rate to 90 per cent. last Monday was a further influence remains to be seen; even as it stands, the week's increase is sufficiently impressive.

Under present circumstances, all these statements must be judged in the light of the plans for a new currency—plans which, as described in the cables, are curiously vague and unconvincing, yet which are almost certain to be tried. The current statement reports a loss of 20,000,000 marks from the Reichsbank's gold reserve, making a total loss of 106,000,000 in a month. This must measure the Government's wholly futile effort to "support the mark," and was poor preparation for the establishment of the proposed new "gold-currency bank." The item "bills of exchange and cheques" increased 113 trillions during the first week of September. That may include foreign bills acquired by the Reichsbank; which would be another necessary preliminary to a gold-reserve currency. But it is impossible to determine what part of the item is thus made up, or to figure out its gold value when the statement gives its value in paper marks.

Bankers Market Canadian Refunding 5 Per Cent. Issue.

The first instalment of Canadian Government financing in connection with refunding expiring war bonds made its appearance yesterday when a Canadian syndicate purchased $50,000,000 of Dominion of Canada 5 per cent. internal bonds and announced that public offering would be made today.

The award to Canadian banking houses ended a three-cornered competition. Until a few weeks ago both London and New York bankers had expected a share in the business. Canadian funding operations for this Autumn will amount to about $160,000,000, according to bankers. It is possible that other markets will share in the rest of the work.

The $50,000,000 issue will be dated Oct. 15 next. It comprises two maturities, one of five-year bonds maturing in 1928 and the other of twenty-year bonds maturing in 1943. The bonds are payable in Canadian funds, and offering is made through A. E. Ames & Co., Wood, Gundy & Co., the Dominion Securities Corporation and the National City Company.

PREDICTS CRASH IN EUROPE.

Irving T. Bush Says Sane Solution Is Not Desired.

Irving T. Bush said yesterday at a luncheon of the Manufacturers' Export Association in the Whitehall Club that in his opinion Europe did not want a "common-sense solution" of the reparations problem. He predicted that the question would be permitted to drift until disaster resulted.

Mr. Bush, who recently returned from Europe, declared that if France pursued her present policy until 1925 the interest on her debt would render her a virtual bankrupt.

Germany, he thought, had not purposely evaded reparations payments, and he said that it would be advisable to have an impartial commission examine the facts.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Sharp Break in Late Trading.

Although prices had seemed to be holding firm on the Stock Exchange during the early hours of trading yesterday, accessive selling began again in the late trading, ascribed by traders to advices from abroad in regard to the Rhur situation. The resultant break in stocks established new low records for the year to date. At the start of the day the action of the market as a whole encouraged operators for the rise. In the last hour, Wall Street professed to be surprised and dismayed at learning that Belgium and France would not carry on negotiations with Germany until Stresemann comes with an unqualified statement of his attitude in regard to reparations and non-resistance in the Ruhr. No one appeared to recall that this has been the Franco-Belgian attitude all along and was discussed at the conference of the premiers.

Losses Credited to "Insiders."

In view of the fact that the public has taken little interest in the stock market during the past few months, it is only natural for the rank and file to assume that the "insiders" or wealthy individuals who play for big stakes in the stock market have taken heavy losses in the stock market during the recent declines. It was assumed that these stories are true to a considerable extent from the fact that such statements were made yesterday in quarters which do not generally pick yarns out of the air just for the sake of making talk. In addition to heavy losses in the oil stocks, it was learned yesterday, several operators who have taken losses in the oil stocks were caught on the short side of cotton

Awaiting a "Test."

The old Wall Street axiom that either investor or speculator can make money in a bull market, only the speculator in a bear market, but neither in an uncertain market, was repeated yesterday and applied to the price movements of the last few weeks, particularly of the current week, which shows scarcely a perceptible change in the averages. Wall Street therefore professes now to be "waiting for a test." Thus far the market, like the business situation, has been confusing in its manifestations as to what the early future might bring, but most of what little trading has been done thus far is believed to have been for the short account. Very recent news developments have been mainly of a favorable nature, but lingering doubt as to the future of trade is still obvious in the minds of many Wall Street people, even though bankers are seemingly agreed that the country's business is on an even keel.

The July Freight Movement.

The announcement of ton miles of freight handled by the railroads of the United States during July is an explanation of why the July earnings, reported last month, were not as large as railroad executives had hoped. The total ton miles moved was 38,513,263,000, which is 5 per cent. less than for the same month in 1920, and 2 per cent. less than in 1918, although the car loadings in July, 1923, were much heavier than in either of these years. The apparent discrepancy between these figures was in part explained yesterday by the tons per car loaded, which were 28.5 in 1923, 29.5 tons in 1920, and 30.1 tons in 1918; but it was also pointed out that in previous years the much larger volume of export freight gave a longer haul to products originating at distant interior points.

Anthracite Shares Up.

In a market characterized mostly by weakness the anthracite shares advanced yesterday. In this movement the shares of the Baltimore & Ohio led the way with an advance of 1¼ points, while the Delaware & Hudson, the Erie second preferred, and the Reading second preferred each gained a point, and the Lackawanna ¾ of a point. Announcement by certain executives that the coal carriers had not lost as much through the coal strike as had been anticipated due to their success in cutting costs were also believed to have played a part in the advance of these shares.

RAPID FLUCTUATIONS IN COTTON MARKET

Trading Feverish in Most Active Session This Season—Price Changes Irregular at Close.

As a result of the violent advance this week, cotton churned around feverishly yesterday. While weather continued unfavorable, predictions of clearing conditions in the West belt relieved tension somewhat, but without eliminating the nervousness prevailing. At times the supply of contracts proved extremely limited, but at others increased selling pressure became apparent. A weak stock market caused realizing during the afternoon while hedges continued to come from Southern sources. It is reported that less than a thousand bales of cotton remains unsold in New York. First notice day on October contracts comes on the 25th instant. Prices closed 10 points higher to 29 points lower, after one of the largest day's business this season.

YANKS CLINCH FLAG; DEFEAT BROWNS, 4-3

Victory Gives Hugmen Their Third Successive American League Pennant.

JONES WEAKENS IN NINTH

But Recovers in Time to Check St. Louis Rally With Tying Run on Third.

The Yankees are "in." By defeating the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 3, at the Stadium yesterday the team of Miller Huggins clinched its third straight pennant in the American League. Even if the Cleveland Indians should win all their remaining games and the Yanks lose all theirs the champions would still have a margin of a full game at the end of the season.

Not only did the Yanks insure another pennant for tis city, but by winning three pennants in a row they became only the second team in the history of the American League to perform this feat. In 1907, 1908 and 1909 Hughey Jennings's Detroit Tigers won the flag in the younger circuit, but this performance has never been repeated until the Yankees achieved it by yesterday's victory.

If the Hugmen should lose all of their remaining thirteen games and the Indians should win all of their nineteen contests the final standing would still show the Yanks in front, as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Yankees	93	61	.604
Indians	92	62	.597

The Yanks put their best foot forward in an effort to settle the pennant race once and for all yesterday. No-Hit Sam Jones, the leading pitcher of the Huggins ensemble, was sent against the Browns, and Sam capped the best season he has had since leaving the Red Sox by holding the Browns safe in the early innings and struggling through a bad ninth inning to win. When the game was over Samuel was almost mobbed by his teammates and the fans, who crowded around the pitcher, shook his hand, patted him on the back and all but carried him off the field on their shoulders.

A Record for the Yanks.

Clinching the pennant on Sept. 20 does not set a record for the American League, but it was a record for the Yanks, who had to battle along until the day before the end of the season in 1921 and 1922 before they were sure of the pennant. Now the only thing the Hugmen have to worry about is the world's series.

But for a time yesterday they were worrying whether they would even beat the Browns. After having had much the better of a pitching argument with Elam Van Gilder in the early innings, Jones began weakening in the eighth and ninth, and all but lost the decision in the final round. Schliebner started the last inning with a single and stole second, after Pinch-Hitter Durst had fanned. Gerber flied to Ruth, but Ezzell singles off Dugan's glove, and Tobin slashed a double to right which scored Schliebner, put Ezzell on third and placed the Browns only one run behind.

Jones and Miller Huggins elected to pitch to Ken Williams, who was at bat, and this nervy strategy worked with complete success. After getting into the threea-nd-two hole, Jones gave the slugger one through the groove. Williams lifted it straight in the air, Schang settled under it and almost missed it—and the pennant race was over.

An exciting finish to an otherwise quiet ball game. The Yanks had it too much their own way in the first few frames and rolled up a lead that looked safe. Meusel singled in the second with one out, ran to third on Ward's double to left, and the pair of them scored on Schang's single over second. With Scott at bat, a foul tip hit Hank Severeid, the St. Louis catcher, behind the left ear, cut a gash and rendered Hank so groggy that he could hardly walk to the bench. Pat Collins took his place.

Browns Creep Up.

In the third Dugan got on base and scored when Ruth tripled into the right field pocket. A walk to the Babe, a wild pitch and Meusel's single made it 4-0 in the sixth, but in the seventh the Browns began creeping up from behind, scoring once in that inning on Jacobson's two-bagger and Gerber's single, and again in the eighth on McManus's infield hit, Ward's wild throw and Collins's base hit to left.

How Jones almost lost the game in the ninth has been described. Babe Ruth, incidentally, helped to save it. He made a bare-hand stop of Tobin's smash to right and held it to two bases. Otherwise Ezzell might have scored and the game would have been tied and the Yanks this morning mightn't be the proud possessors of another American League pennant.

Giants Need 7 More Games To Clinch League Pennant

Although the Giants were idle again yesterday, they moved a step nearer the National League pennant. As the Reds broke even with the Phillies yesterday, they are still four full games behind the Giants, but the champions now have to win only seven of their remaining eleven games to make the winning of the pennant a mathematical certainty. If the Giants win seven more games and the Reds are victorious in all of their nine remaining contests, the champions would then finish the season a full game ahead of the Cincinnati club.

ROBINS WIN FINAL FROM CUBS, 9 TO 7

Grimes Yields Sixteen Hits, but Registers Nineteenth Victory of the Season.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—The Brooklyn Robins won the final game of their series with the Cubs here this afternoon, 9 to 7. It was a free-hitting contest, in which the Cubs made sixteen hits off Grimes and the Robins thirteen off the combined hurling of Wheeler and Osborne. Wheeler, a right-handed recruit from the Wichita Falls club of the Texas League, started the game for the Cubs and lasted seven innings. In the last session he pitched the Robins broke a five to five tie when they bunched four hits and scored four tallies. It was Grimes's nineteenth victory of the season.

REDS AND PHILLIES IN AN EVEN BREAK

Cincinnati Wins Second Contest, 8-7, in Eleven Innings, After Losing First, 2-0.

TIMELY SINGLE BY WINGO

Scores Roush With Deciding Run in Extra Inning—Reds Take Season's Series, 19-3.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 20.—Cincinnati and Philadelphia broke even in their final double-header of the season today, the visitors winning the first game, 2 to 0, and the home team taking the second, 8 to 7, in eleven innings.

Both Luque and Glazner pitched great ball in the first game, the two runs scored by the Phillies being due to errors by Fowler, a recruit shortstop.

The second game was a slugging match, in which both Benton and Ring were knocked off the mound early. The Phillies tied the score on three hits off Harris in the ninth, but the Reds got the winning run in the last half of the eleventh on Roush's single, his stolen base and a single by Wingo.

The Reds won the season's series from the Phillies, nineteen games to three.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Sept. 20.—Mrs. Thomas Hucknall and Mrs. Wight Goss Jr. gained the final round for the women's New Jersey State golf championship by winning their semi-final matches on the course of the Essex County Club here today.

Mrs. Hucknall advanced at the expense of the sixteen-year-old sensation, Miss Maureen Orcutt, 3 and 2. Mrs. Goss was carried to the full route before she could conquer Mrs. Courtland Smith by 1 up. The final will be played tomorrow at eighteen holes.

WILLS TO MEET SMITH.

Heavyweights Are Matched for Bout at Queensboro on Sept. 27.

The management of the Queensboro Stadium at Long Island City yesterday announced the matching of Harry Wills and Homer Smith for a ten-round bout on Sept. 27. This will be the first bout for Wills, who has been a persistent challenger for the heavyweight championship, in almost a year. Smith may be remembered as the boxer who stayed ten rounds with Luis Firpo, on the latter's recent barnstorming tour.

Shortly after his bout with Smith, Wills will leave on an exhibition tour which will carry him to the Pacific Coast, where James J. Coffroth is said to have arranged several important bouts for him, one of which will be with Floyd Johnson.

SWEETSER REACHES GOLF SEMI-FINALS

Beats Guilford in Third Round of National Amateur Play—Ouimet Also Advances.

MEDAL PLAY-OFF TO JONES

Open Champion Defeats Evans by 4 Strokes With a 71—Gardner and Marston Survive.

FLOSSMOOR, Ill., Sept. 20.—Two strenuous struggles between golf giants and two other matches that were more or less on the runaway order marked the round before the semi-final in the national amateur golf championship here today. In the feature match which brought the 1921 and 1922 champions together, Jess Sweetser of New York was the winner, defeating Jesse Guilford of Boston by 2 and 1. In the other Francis Ouimet of Boston, former national open and amateur champion, defeated George Von Elm of Salt Lake City by the same margin.

Robert Gardner of Chicago, two-time amateur ruler, had an easy time of it with Densmore Shute, the West Virginia champion, his victory being clinched on the thirtieth green. The fourth victor of the day was Max Marston of Philadelphia, who, after conquering Bobby Jones, open champion, yesterday, failed to strike his stride until the late stages of his match against J. M. Wells, the Ohio State champion. The latter was 1 up at noon, but Marston launched forth in the second round and won by 4 and 3.

As an added attraction today, Bobby Jones of Atlanta, and Chick Evans of Chicago, who on Monday tied for the medal at the close of the 36-hole qualifying round, engaged in the play-off at eighteen holes, Jones winning with a 71 card against 75 for Evans.

Sweetser will meet Gardner in the upper half of the semi-final round tomorrow while Marston will battle Ouimet.

Sweetser Hard Pressed.

In winning his match against Guilford, Sweetser broke the hoodoo which has taken the year's champions, one after another, out of the tourney on successive days. On Tuesday it was Evans, the Western champion; yesterday it was Jones, the open title-holder. But for the greater part of the match, Sweetser gave his admirers a mild form of heart failure by his woeful work on the putting greens. Although outplaying Guilford, through the fairway throughout the morning round, he finished all even at the end of eighteen holes and that only because Guilford played the home hole abominably.

In the afternoon round Sweetser's superiority over Guilford up to the greens was even more marked, but his putter was still behaving badly and at the turn he was only 2 up when he might well have been 5 up or even 6 up, Guilford saving the second hole through a beautiful recovery from a trap and being presented with a win at the first and halves at the fifth and ninth.

After winning two more holes through Guilford's wildness, Sweetser gave the Bostonian a half at the twelfth when he undercut an easy approach shot from less than thirty yards off the green, and he then presented Guilford with two openings which carried the match as far as the thirty-fifth green before a halved hole ended the match. In the end it was Guilford's wildness that eliminated him despite Sweetser's ineffectual work on the putting greens and his own heroic struggle against big odds.

Von Elm Holds Ouimet.

The turning point of the Ouimet-Von Elm match came at the fifteenth hole in the afternoon round. By winning the tenth hole with a 4 to Von Elm's 5, Francis drew level with the Far Westerner. He then won the twelfth, but lost the next and after a half at the fourteenth they left for the fifteenth hole all even and with the match still in doubt. Von Elm hooked to the rough and Francis followed.

Each had to play out safe, but after Von Elm had played his third shot to the green, Francis pitched almost into the hole, his ball stopping stone dead. Von Elm just escaped the traps short of the green and lost the sixteenth, and Ouimet, in spite of two bad shots, got his required half at the next hole.

The 18-hole play-off for the medal between Jones and Evans found the latter one stroke ahead at the end of the first nine holes. The Chicagoan's card at the turn was 36, even with par, while the open champion took 37. On the return, however, Jones made the second nine holes in 34, four strokes under par, giving him a total of 71, three under par. Evans practically ruined his chances on the tenth and twelfth, where he took 6s to birdie 4s for Jones. Evans made the return in 39 for 75.

The cards with par:

Par out ....5 3 5 4 4 4 3 4 4—36

SARAZEN IS FIRST IN $4,500 OAKDALE

Captures Sixth Straight Race in Winning Aqueduct Feature by Two Lengths.

FIRM FRIEND IS VICTOR

McNaughton's Four-Year-Old Ably Ridden by Sande in Ballot Handicap—Lady Belle Wins.

Carrying the black silks with salmon crosses of the Fair Stable of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt 2d, the unbeaten chestnut gelding Sarazen yesterday afternoon won the Oakdale Handicap at the Aqueduct track with the same ease that he has displayed in gaining all his other victories. The son of High Time and Rush Box jumped away from the barrier and was galloping in front of his field when the flag fell. He was never in danger, opening a lead of two lengths and being that much in front of Lee Rosenberg's Sun Pal when he flashed past the winning post at the end of the six-furlong journey.

Sarazen made light of his heavy impost of 127 pounds and was going with the utmost ease at the head of a field of five good juveniles. Seven were scratched out of the overnight entry of eleven, apparently deeming it hopeless to go against the gelding. The Rancocas Stable added Hourmore, but he finished out of the money. Sun Pal was three and a half lengths in front of W. R. Coe's Elvina. Sarazen, which was practically a prohibitive favorite, ran the distance in 1:12, earning $4,500 for his owner, a newcomer to racing this season. It was his sixth straight victory. Clarence Kummer had the mount and made a double during the afternoon by bringing W. R. Coe's Lady Belle home in front in the Willow Purse for two-year-old fillies over the five-furlong course.

Sandy McNaughton's Firm Friend, four-year-old son of Friar Rock and Bold Girl, won the Ballot Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth in a field of seven, being ably ridden at the finish by Sande to beat A. J. Contento's Miss Cerina by a head. The latter was a length and a half in front of the public choice, L. Liebling's Master Hand.

Army Polo Players To Replace Lost Stars of Shelburne Team

Crippled by the loss of two of its stars, Louis E. Stoddard and Morgan Belmont, the Shelburne polo team has not sought far for men to replace the missing forward and back in the tournament for the American Open Championship. The play of the American Army players against the British military combination increased their individual prestige greatly, and Major A. H. Wilson will be at No. 1 and Major Louis Beard will be at back for Shelburne against the Indian Tigers tomorrow. This afternoon the British Army four will make the second assault on the American title, Hurlingham having been turned back in the first game on Wednesday. The Flamingo four will oppose the British Army team on the field at Meadow Brook Club today.

ZEV-MY OWN RACE IS DEFINITELY OFF

Hildreth Says Rancocas Star Will Not Start Until International Race Is Run, Oct. 20.

That the Rancocas Stable's Zev and the Salubria Stable's My Own will not come together in a special race to determine which is the better three-year-old to represent the United States in the international race against the Epsom Derby winner Papyrus was made certain yesterday afternoon when S. C. Hildreth, Zev's trainer, stated emphatically that Zev would not meet My Own or any other horse and will not start in any race before the running of the international event at Belmont Park on Oct. 20.

A purse of $50,000 was offered by the management of the Laurel track and this was followed by the offer of a purse of $20,000 by the Queens County Jockey Club for a race at the Aqueduct track next week. As the two colts will not meet, the committee of the Jockey Club in charge of the international race will have to select the colt to meet Papyrus on the showings made by Zev and My Own in their races this season.

August Belmont, Chairman of the Jockey Club, yesterday received the following cablegram from Basil Jarvis, trainer of Papyrus:

"Thanks for cable. Think all is in order. Shipping horse tomorrow."
